SURPRISE AT HALL TRIAL; PASTOR TO TELL STORY

'Housewives' List' in American's War on Unfair Prices

The Boston American presents herewith to the housewives and the retail grocers and butchers of New England, "The Housewives' Price List." The wholesale prices quoted in the last column are the prices given out each day by the Fruit and Produce Exchange of Boston, the official wholesale organization of this city.

In the column marked "Retail Prices," the Boston American requests that retail dealers of these goods place their own quotations, showing exactly what they are charging the public. Having done so, dealers are asked to kindly fill out the upper portion of the price list with their names and addresses. After that, some member of the firm should sign the price list at the bottom and send it to the Boston American for publication. It will be printed in full with the name of the firm.

Care will be taken to verify these price lists by the Boston American to guard against fake lists being sent to us by unauthorized persons. In this way every retailer will be able to get his own story and his own prices before his customers.

The Boston American will make no charge for publishing these lists, but will gladly do so in the interest of the public.

New England housewives, the success you have had during the last week in beating down the extortionate prices charged by some retailers in Boston and vicinity deserves the thanks of everyone.

Please note "The Housewives' Price List" that we are giving herewith. The wholesale prices are official. When you go to market today and Monday, take this list with you. Quote the wholesale prices to your butcher and your grocer and ask him what the retail prices are today. If he is charging an extortionate price, write his name and address at the top of the list, put his prices in the blank provided for it in the retail price column, and mail this information to the Boston American.

We will investigate it and verify the statements contained therein, and we will print the list up to the capacity of this paper to print such lists.

Remember, this is exactly what some retail dealers do not desire. So long as their extortion is continued without personal publicity to themselves, they will continue it. You can serve the great New England public and yourselves by giving us the facts.

Watch for this list daily. We will give the day's prices from our midday editions on.

This is information for you, so that you will be able to buy cheaply and compel your retailer to charge you a fair price.

Address all communications to
EDITOR OF BOSTON AMERICAN.

RETAILERS KEEP UP PRICES

Profits on Eggs in Excess of Limit; Federal Restrictions Removed Today

The federal lid on food profits, except on eggs and cottonseed products, went off today.

This announcement from Washington—only put in official form—served to emphasize the fact that the National Food Administration still allows the retailer a profit margin of only seven to eight cents a dozen on fresh and cold storage eggs.

That profit limit is still in effect, at least it is supposed to be.

The retail price of fresh eggs in the city markets and in representative suburban districts today was: City, 65; Brighton, 70; Coolidge Corner, 76; Allston, 60.

The lowest of these, 60 in the city, is 11 cents over the wholesale price of yesterday. The Coolidge Corner retail quotation, 76 cents, is 21 cents higher than the producer exchange's wholesale rate.

While the wholesale price of storage eggs yesterday was quoted on the Exchange at 42 to 46 cents, the following retail prices were found in the city and suburbs today:

City, 52; Malden, 58; Melrose, 60; Dorchester, 55 and 57; Roslindale, 50; Brookline Village, 58-60; Roxbury, 56; Jamaica Plain, 59; Wellesley, 62; Watertown, 60; Newton, 62; Waltham, 60.

PUNISHMENT DUTY BY CHELSEA POLICE

Patrolmen Robert E. McCarthy and George Batten of the Chelsea police department, who pleaded guilty to charges of unnecessary absence from duty, were ordered to do 100 hours of extra duty before May 1. They were charged with being absent from their routes on the evening of January 22, when they were found in a house on Heard street by Acting Chief Frank W. Tucker. Their suspension of thirty days was removed and the two were ordered to report for duty.

TROOPSHIP WITH 2,000 ON BOARD ASHORE

American Soldiers Among Those on Narragansett, Grounded Off England

By International News Service.

London, Feb. 1.—The English Channel transport Narragansett, with sixty American soldiers and nearly 2,000 British soldiers on board, went ashore on a mud bank off Southampton today. It was announced by American army headquarters.

The ship was said to be in no danger and tugs were soon upon the scene.

The work of taking off the soldiers was begun at once, while preparations were made to haul off the ship at high tide.

The captain and part of the crew of the American steamship Plave were landed at Ramsgate today.

Thirty survivors from the Plave were landed at Deal today and seventy-nine others at Dover.

The Plave is now a total loss having broken up under the terrific pounding of heavy seas. She split in two while efforts were being made to refloat her. The Plave's lifeboats were caught in the wreckage, barring the occupants into the water.

ADMITS BUYING LIQUOR WHILE WEARING UNIFORM

Attleboro, Jan. 31.—Joseph Fogarty, a soldier on trial in court here on serious charges, testified that he had been drinking and that he had procured liquor in Pawtucket, while in uniform. He said that he bought beer and whiskey and that at the time he was wearing the same uniform in which he appeared in court which included an army overcoat with three service stripes.

Fogarty was held in $1,000 for the Grand Jury.

PEACE IN MILL WAR SOUGHT

Call for Boston Conference of Lawrence Leaders; 48 Hours for New Bedford

New Bedford, Feb. 1.—The New Bedford Cotton Manufacturers' Association, in conference with the executive committee of the local Textile Council today, granted the operatives a forty-eight-hour week, although up to noon it had failed to reach an agreement on the question of pay. The decision affects about 35,000 operatives and twenty-seven corporations.

Following the vote of Lawrence textile workers to strike on Monday, following their demand for a 48-hour week with 54 hours' pay, Charles G. Wood of the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration today endeavored to bring about a conference with mill heads in Boston.

Belief was expressed that agents in Lawrence lack sufficient authority to make concessions to the operatives, and that a strike might be averted by bringing the matter directly to the heads of plants concerned.

Boston and Metropolitan police will be held in readiness, it was unofficially reported, to go to Lawrence in case Monday's strike should develop any trouble.

LABOR MEN DIVIDED.

Various mill heads in Lawrence stated today that they would open

PASTOR'S FRIENDS TESTIFY

Neighbors of Halls at Harrington Tell of Happy Married Life of Couple

Saco, Me., Feb. 1.—The defence at the trial of the Rev. Henry H. Hall, accused of the murder of his wife, sprung a big surprise today when it admitted that marks on the throat of the murdered woman were made by human fingers.

Hall's counsel, in his opening address to the jury, said the marks were made by a relative, named Leach, who grasped Mrs. Hall to keep her from falling from a buggy, as she was being removed from the place where her body was found.

Up to this time the defense had attempted to show by cross-examination of State witnesses that discolorations on Mrs. Hall's throat might be due to embalming fluid.

Hall will tell the jury his story of his life.

His counsel, Frederick W. Hinckley, made the announcement in opening the pastor's defense today.

Here are excerpts of the things Mr. Hinckley said Hall would tell:

How he met a vampire who made "the only black mark in the clean page of his otherwise spotless life."

How he confessed his transgressions later to his wife when she visited him at the hospital where he had sought treatment.

How after she had forgiven him and taken him back he fol-

NEWPORT DEALERS HOLD TO HIGH PRICE

Newport, R. I., Feb. 1.—The high cost of living is being pricks generally kept up in Newport. At one store, however, it was noted that smoked shoulders had been marked down from 34 to 28 cents a pound. Ask a dealer how the poor can afford to pay such high prices and the reply will come back that "there are no longer any poor people in Newport and that they will pay any price the store may ask."

200,000 IDLE BY STRIKES IN BERLIN

Exclusive Cable by the International News Service and the London Daily Express.

Berlin, Feb. 1.—Over 200,000 persons are out of work as a result of the coal shortage and strikes.

The coal famine here has become critical. It is feared that many more factories will have to close, making additional thousands idle.

There is plenty of work in the country and the government is trying to force idle workmen to leave the cities and go into the provinces.

FEDERAL RESTRICTIONS ON FOOD PROFITS ARE NOW OFF

RETAILERS SLOW TO YIELD

Many in Suburbs Still Holding On to Good-Sized Margins

RESTRICTIONS REMOVED.

The Washington dispatch today announced the removal of all restrictions on margins of profit on foodstuffs except unprocessed products and sugar, and the cancellation of licenses issued to importers and distributors. The order became effective today at 12 o'clock noon by the National Food Administration, to whom those of importance issued by the President.

Provisions of Order.

The following are the principal provisions:

"Importers, distributors of sugar, cane, maple, sorghum, honey and other sweets, refiners and manufacturers of sugar and sirup, wholesalers, jobbers, retailers, canners of or dealers in canned fruits, vegetables, fish, meats and other canned foods, manufacturers of condensed, powdered, evaporated or concentrated milk, lard, butter, oleomargarine and eggs.

"Importers and manufacturers of rice, rice flour, wheat flour or wheat feed, bread and other cereal foods.

"The margins and allowed are: Retail sugar, 2 cents per pound; wholesale sugar, 1 cent per pound; refined lard substitutes, 4 cents wholesale, 10c retail; bound in more than 50-pound packages, 3 to 5c per pound; 50 less than 50-pound packages and 5 to 8 cents and 18 to 22 per cent. at retail. Wholesale margins on eggs either according to the number or services performed by the wholesaler or jobber.

DEALERS WARNED AGAIN

In addition to regulations cancelled by the proclamation all remaining special regulations governing manufacturers and distributors of butter were repealed.

In making its announcement the food administration warned dealers that the provisions of the food control act prohibiting profiteering and unfair practices would be rigidly enforced.

This action by the President virtually brings to an end the activities of the food administration except for the continued control of the exported commodities, which, officials explained, is necessary either because of contractual obligations of the government or because of a determination to maintain established prices. It was predicted by these officials that most remaining functions would cease before March 1.

Dr. Jonathan Day, Commissioner of Public Markets in New York city, has published a list of food prices asked at standard stores there for the guidance of housewives. The egg and butter retail quotations are:

TWO SERGEANTS ARE ACCUSED BY CURTIS

Another sensation was sprung in the Police Department when Commissioner Curtis ordered that charges of neglect of duty be brought against Sergeants Patrick Haynes and Dennis Kerrigan of the Roxbury Crossing police station.

The charges as interested by members of the department are brought about through the vigilance of Police Commissioner Curtis while going over the evidence in the case of a patrolman of the Roxbury Crossing station who was dismissed from the force.

It is said that when the commissioner read of the sergeants' testimony that they had seen the policeman drunk before the time they filed complaint, he charged the sergeants with neglect of duty in not reporting the previous cases.

Glasgow, Feb. 1.—Fifty-three persons—thirty-four civilians and nineteen policemen—were hurt in strike riots here today.

Soldiers with fixed bayonets are patrolling the streets. Chairman Shinwell of the strikers was arrested charged with inciting riots.

PARDON FOR SNOW IS AGAIN REFUSED

Edwin Ray Snow, in his fight for a pardon, received another setback when the Advisory Board of Pardons filed an adverse report with the Governor and Council. The case has been before the Governor and Council since 1917. Snow was convicted of shooting and killing James Whittemore of Yarmouth in 1899. Snow was then nineteen. It was alleged that he became enraged because Whittemore refused to lend him $25 to help out with a gambling sweetheart. He was sentenced to be executed, but the sentence was commuted to life imprisonment.

THINK OF THE MONEY YOU CAN SAVE ON SHOES

Clarence J. Bloenker of St. Louis, Missouri, writes, "I have a pair of shoes with Neolin Soles and have used them for two years. I think they will last another six months."

Mr. Bloenker also recommends Neolin Soles for their comfort and waterproofness.

It is a remarkable fact that Neolin Soles cost no more than others that give only ordinary wear. You can get them on new shoes in many styles for men, women and children—and they are available everywhere for resoling, too.

And look at the money you save—because you need fewer pairs of shoes with Neolin Soles. Remember—these soles are made by Science to be especially tough and durable. They are manufactured by The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. of Akron, Ohio, who also make Wingfoot Heels—guaranteed to outwear any other heels.

Mrs. Castle Denies She Is to Wed Tom Powers

New York, Feb. 1.—Mrs. Irene Castle, the dancer, denied emphatically that, on her arrival on the Adriatic from overseas the report that she would be married to Tom Powers, the close friend of the late Vernon Castle, Mrs. Castle's husband, who was killed in a northern aviation camp.

"The whole matter is absolutely absurd," she said. "I am not engaged to Mr. Powers. We are good friends and will remain so. He has heard the report as well as I, and has taken it good-naturedly."

Mr. Powers and Mrs. Castle were engaged in war work in English hospitals.

HIGH SCHOOL FARM BOYS DISCHARGED

Nearly 200 Boston High school boys engaged in farm work as members of the United States Boys' Working Reserve in 1918 received their honorable discharges today in the Public Latin School assembly. Mayor Peters was among the speakers. There were 12 boys from Brighton High school, 29 from Dorchester High, 59 from English High, 55 from Jamaica Plain High, 16 from Mechanics Arts High, 19 from Public Latin School, 5 from West Roxbury High, and one each from South Boston High and East Boston High.

DOUBT IDENTITY OF GIRL VICTIM AT PALISADES

New York, Feb. 1.—Axelle Packwood, supposed victim of the mysterious Palisades tragedy, was never married so far as her personal associates, Arleigh Durham, knows. She was awaiting her 20th birthday as the result of an inheritance from her mother, he said.

He failed to identify the body being held at Englewood when he visited the morgue at the request of her brother.

George H. Packwood, wealthy business man of Tampa, Fla., father of the supposed suicide, came here today. The Packwood family doubt that the body of the supposed suicide is that of Axelle and that that if it is there is reason to suspect foul play, according to messages received by New York and New Jersey authorities.

Miss Packwood was an ardent lover of music and at one time was a student at the Boston Conservatory of Music.

JOBLESS MOB LOOTS VIENNA BUILDINGS

1919 Papal Year Book Ignores Central Empires

London, Feb. 1 (British Wireless).—A noteworthy feature of the Papal year book for 1919, published in Rome, is the suppression by the compiler of the official names of dioceses hitherto forming part of the German and Austro-Hungarian empires. These are replaced by purely geographical and regional designation.

Thus under "Austria" the only diocese shown is the diocese of Vienna, while the diocese of Prague is shown under "Bohemia," that of Trento under "Syria" and so forth.

The dioceses of Strassburg and Metz, formerly shown under the "German Empire," are now described as "autonomous" under "Saice" and "Lorraine," respectively. Germany as a whole is described as divided into the "autonomous" regions of Alx, Baden, Bavaria, Prussia, etc.

Poland is described as "formerly German," and the Warsaw region is united as Russian. Hungary is represented as "Austria." The Czecho-Slovak diocese comes under "Bohemia and Moravia."

ELEVEN PERISH AS FISHING BOAT SINKS

Copenhagen, Feb. 1.—Eleven persons were killed when a Norwegian fishing boat was sunk by a mine off the Norwegian coast today.

Quality Bond of Breads Guaranteed

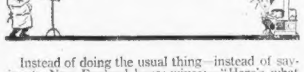
How New England housewives earned Bond Bread

The most fascinating chapter in bread-history was written in Boston last week, when the General Baking Company gathered together the home-skill of 6405 local house-wives and combined that skill into a new loaf—called Bond Bread—the most nutritious and the most delicious loaf ever perfected.

Instead of doing the usual thing—instead of saying to New England house-wives: "Here's what we bakers think is good bread, eat it"—Instead of that these Bakers announced:—

"Mrs. Housewife—you like best the bread you make at home. Please bake a loaf and show it to us. We will match your loaf. We will make bread whatever way you say. This we can easily do, because we will use the very same ingredients as you use, and we will make it under scientific conditions, which will enable us to control humidity and temperature better than you can."

"Show us thought thousands of New England house-wives, and this was their response:



"Make it my way—I am tired of baking." That was the house-wives answer. And so, on January 18th, 6405 women submitted their home-made loaves at the Tremont Temple, Boston.

That afternoon 30 impartial experts (well-known New England women in no way connected with the bakeries) analyzed the home-made loaves, and selected the 121 prize winners.

These bread judges were headed by Miss Claribel Nye, Bread Specialist of Cornell University. They all worked without compensation. Their only motive, was to help New England win better bread—the Bond Bread—combining the home-skill of 6405 New England women.

Then the baking experts took the 121 prize-winning loaves. They examined them. They analyzed them. They experimented for several days.

At last (last Wednesday) New England received the new Bond Bread, which those house-wives had earned for their neighbors. And, every day, more and more New England people are adopting this child of those 6405 women who submitted their home-made loaves.

Here are some of the reasons why Bond Bread has captured New England women—

"I take Bond Bread because it has that real home-made flavor."

"I buy Bond Bread because it is so evenly textured that it slices thinly and without waste."

"I buy Bond Bread because my children will be content with no other bread, since they have tried Bond Bread."

"I insist on Bond Bread because I like to know what we eat, and Bond Bread's ingredients are fully listed on each loaf, and guaranteed under the bakery's bond. This bond is what gives Bond Bread its name."

But many New England women insist on Bond Bread without knowing just why. Some feel that "Bond Bread is more digestible."

Fact is that the new Bond Bread IS more digestible than the best of those home-made loaves.

Likewise, Bond Bread is more nutritious. Its ingredients are the same as used in the home-made bread submitted.

But, more than that, these materials are mixed and raised and baked by a new process that enables Bond Bread to nourish most.

Analyses of the great chemists prove this fact—i. e.—that, in point of nutrition and digestibility, Bond Bread marks a new era in bread-making. (Copies of these analyses can be had on application.)

Opportunities

AMERICA is called the land of opportunity.

If you are inclined to doubt the truth of this statement, if you do not believe that this country is overflowing with opportunities, open up this copy of the Boston American to the page of Want Ads and look at the many who are offering positions.

The Boston American Want Ad page is a sea of opportunities.

They are there, big and little.

There are opportunities for the investment of money, opportunities to go into business, opportunities to sell all manner of things, opportunities for service, and opportunities to engage service.

There is hardly a direction of human activity which cannot find some suitable channel by an intelligent use of Boston American Want Ads.

Can an able-bodied man today complain that he cannot find work when, by taking up this newspaper, he can see the call of hundreds eager to employ him?

Can the young woman wage-worker say that she can find no self-respecting employment, when thousands of doors to reputable concerns are here open?

Can the business manager or executive say with truth that he cannot find the men or women to do the work he has to do, when in these Want Ad columns is a long procession of inquiring workers?

Boston American Want Ads are not glittering generalities. They are distinct, concrete statements of practical opportunity.

These opportunities are not confined to any one class of society, to any one grade of intelligence or capacity. They are as varied as humanity.

For this city is a little slice of humanity.

In the vast and complex business that is here carried on, there is room for every willing hand, and for every order of ability.

Most of those who say that they can find no suitable work, say this because they have not systematically and persistently availed themselves of the opportunities that every day are printed in the Want Ad columns of the Boston American.

It would be interesting for the student of economics and of social conditions to estimate the great service which Boston American Want Ads render toward the removal of discontent by enabling workers easily and cheaply to find employment, and to estimate also the great value of the Boston American Want Ad page to the business efficiency of the city by furnishing a medium through which the largest number of applicants can be reached with the least expense.

Boston American Want Ads spell opportunity.

MINISTER ON TRIAL AS WIFE SLAYER TO BARE LIFE ON THE STAND

NEIGHBORS TELL OF HAPPY LIFE OF HALL AND WIFE

lowed ever after the straight and narrow path.

Hall's mother, in an effort to save her son, took the stand as the first witness for the defence.

Mr. Hinckley dramatically defended the reputation of Katie Gerow, with whose name Hall's has been linked by the prosecution as one of the motives for the murder of which the slander is accused.

"Katie Gerow is one of the best hearted girls who ever lived," said Mr. Hinckley. "And if Hall ever saw her in any compromising situation with her or with any other woman in his life."

He was no more interested in Katie Gerow than in any one of the score or more of young people in the Weis congregation.

"Hall was a devoted and patriotic pastor and attended to the spiritual needs of his congregation with uncommon faithfulness. He was a devoted husband and father as long as his beloved wife remained alive.

"It is true Hall met Grace Gerow in Portland on June 5 and became interested in her weeks before the death of his wife, which he had a perfect right to do.

HOPED TO MARRY GIRL.

"Grace Gerow is one of the purest girls who ever lived, and Hall's interest in her was that of a religious teacher who hoped to strengthen his life's work in by aiding the Gerow girl in becoming converted and in time a woman as Grace Gerow.

"The defence showed how it would combat the inference raised by the prosecution that Hall clouted his wife before the fist or was thrown from the bridge by maltreating the finger marks on her throat were caused by reducing the space of neck, she grasped her to keep her from falling from the hand car as she was being rescued to her home from the scene of the accident.

Attorney Hinckley in his opening, said: "We shall show that Hall had produced sufficient evidence to warrant a conviction of this defendant.

"Hall is not guilty of murder, and defence—not even the defendant himself—has a case of Starr to prove.

"Hall—we intend to open up the second book of life of Hall in justice to himself and to Opie Read—whatever of those base insinuations.

"The things neighbors don't know and can't tell will be told when Mr. Hall himself.

"His father was a lifer Civil War veteran. His mother will take the stand and tell of his noble life.

FELL TO WOMAN'S CHARMS.

"Hall's neighbors and friends will tell you that Hall was always kissing and always happy. He was a model housekeeper.

"Hall and all the housework—washed and ironed, brushed and drudged around the house and did the cooking.

"Some when Hall left his study and cause joined me with the family and was introduced to an attractive woman.

Hall was taken in by the vampire. She threw her charms around him and he fell. This was the only blemish mark in the clean page of his father, who spotless life.

"The next day Hall went to confess to his wife and implored forgiveness.

"It with came to see him and he confessed to her his wrongdoing. She forgave him and returned to live with him. This was the only time in ever stepped aside from the straight and narrow path.

"The defence called sixty-four witnesses—including a large number of the accused members.

The first witness for the defense was Mrs. Zenos Hall, mother of the accused, who told of Hall's boyhood and religious convictions, and traced his young married life.

SISTER ADDS HER WORD.

Miss Mary Hall, the accused man's sister, testified as to Hall's married life in Barrington, and declared that he had a most disgusting life. She declared Hall never got violently angry, and said she had never heard a cross word between Hall and his wife. "They seemed a very happy and devoted couple," she said.

Mrs. Ira Pickett, a neighbor of the Halls at Harrington, testified that Hall and his wife never had any open hostility to each other, and that they were often seen talking and chatting together.

George L. Ames testified that he never knew of any trouble between Hall and his wife and never heard an unkind word between them. Mrs. Ames corroborated her husband's testimony.

More than a score of Hall's old neighbors were then called to testify that Hall was a patient and devoted husband and a kind father to his boy while while they lived together at Harrington.

Nothing followed the testimony of Eugene Kelley of Harrington and brought forth a severe reprimand from Presiding Judge Scott Wilson.

EDDIE RICKENBACKER BACK FROM THE WAR

Copyright, Western Newspaper Union.

Three American "Aces" returned on the Adriatic from their triumphs abroad. They are Captain Eddie Rickenbacker (standing), Lieutenant P. F. Baer (sitting on left), and Captain Douglas Campbell.

New York, Feb. 1.—Victor in his soldier game, the others are Edward and Rickenbacker, and the handle, Captain Rickenbacker "Dick," America's ace of aces, famous as an auto racer, who is back home today, having returned on the Adriatic. Decorated with medals of various kinds and accompanied by fellow-aviators who told thrilling stories of his achievements in the air, "Dick" was wildly acclaimed by his friends. One fatal attempt to whom his war record is a familiar story.

Following his arrival here, he planned to go at once to Columbus, O., to visit his mother.

Captain Rickenbacker went overseas as chauffeur to General Pershing, but soon made his way into the air service. How he downed twenty-six German planes and saved the lives of his comrades on more than one occasion was told by those comrades, Major James A. Meissner of Brooklyn, Lieutenant Douglas Campbell of Mount Hamilton, Italy, and Lieutenant Paul Baer of Fort Wayne, Ind.

"Sixty per cent. luck, forty per cent. darn foolishness," was "Dick's" explanation of his success.

FULLER IS HOME; SCORES WAR BLUNDERS

Deplores Delay in Bringing American Soldiers Back From Europe

Congressman Alvan T. Fuller of Boston, who has just returned to Washington from the war front, scored the War Department for the delay in getting our soldiers home and makes grave charges against American officers and American "propaganda."

He declares reports of German atrocities exaggerated, and says the United States soldiers are wearing out their welcome in France.

Congressman Fuller was recommended for a commission as major to be in charge of Handley-Paige aeroplane production in England, but the commission was held up in view of the armistice.

Some of his charges are:

"The whole expeditionary force is up in arms over the lack of means on the part of the authorities to produce a plan for getting them home.

"The country is overwrought. But one thing is sure—that if the A. E. F. was to say in concert what they say in private, there would reach America one mighty shout of 'I want to go home.'

"Washington should co-operate with General Pershing in getting the forces home. Instead of this, steamers are returning from every area that could bring 2,000 to 5,000 more passengers.

BLUNDERERS PROMOTED

"They, the soldiers in France, know of American officers who made bad luck in the other side and were sent home by Pershing only to be promoted shortly after their return by the Secretary of War. It is generally agreed in France that the best way to be promoted in France is to be demoted there.

"Practically everybody agrees that had the A. E. F. been under French or English officers their casualties would not have been half what they were.

"I contemplate introducing a resolution into Congress asking an investigation of the fact that American officers ordered American troops over the top at 9 and 9:30 the morning the armistice was signed, when firing was to cease at 10 o'clock. Hundreds, probably thousands, of American troops were lost unnecessarily in order to pad the record for accomplishment of the army.

"South of Metz American troops under General Blue of the 92nd Division were ordered over the top at 7 o'clock the morning after the armistice was signed. At 11 o'clock what was left of these troops marched peacefully into Germany.

"The postal service for our soldiers has been wretched beyond description."

STORIES WERE FICTION.

"Many of the stories of German outrages I traced down, only to find they were fictitious. On many occasions I met military men who said they were engaged in propaganda work.

"I talked with aviators credited with five or six German planes who didn't have height down only one or two.

"On three occasions the 90th Squadron of Aviators and Airplanes was completely wiped out.

"Germany could not build oil deliver at the front a single plane."

"Reports of outrages against women and children are largely false.

"The relief work should be handled by army."

BISHOP'S ROCK TO BE GIVEN OVER TO U. S.

Newport, R. I., Feb. 1.—Bishop Rock has been introduced in the Rhode Island Legislature to cede to the government Bishop's Rock at Newport, so that there may not be future claim by individuals to the site, if this land and also to make possible the construction of a deep water landing pier. Such a pier would permit the landing of stores by the shipload at the station and the dispatching of large drafts by navy transports without ferrying.

Two and a Half Cent Fare Is Refused Pupils by "L"

The trustees of the Boston Elevated Railway Company have refused the petition of Hyman H. Fineman and others for a two and one-half cent fare for school children in the city of Boston.

The action was taken on the ground that the cost of transporting the school children of Boston would not alone be assessed upon the tax payers of this city, but also upon the tax payers of other cities and towns served by the company.

The trustees in their decision, say:

"It would seem that if Boston, through its school board, finds it convenient to build central high and technical schools to which children wish to go that that of education must come from distant parts of the city, and if the city finds it cheap means of transportation for students to these schools exists, it might more fairly raise by taxation a sum sufficient to reimburse the street railway for the difference between the fare which it wishes to charge school children and what it costs the company to provide the service."

SEEK TONG GANG AS SLAYERS OF DR. WONG

Washington, Feb. 1.—Mysteriously murdered by an unknown assailant, the director and secretary and attache of the Chinese educational mission to the United States were found shot to death at the mission here.

Information which led the police to break into the building was furnished by Hong Li, a Chinese instructor, living across the street. Li has since disappeared.

The murdered Chinese are: Theo F. Wong, director of the mission; C. H. Hsie, secretary, and Ban Sen Wu, private secretary to Director Wong. They are believed to have been dead since early Thursday morning.

Washington's police force was baffled by the triple murder which, it was suspected, might have international complications. The crime, three high caste Chinamen, were found shot to death in their home, No. 2022 Kalorama Road, a fashionable neighborhood in the northwest, and an early investigation inclined the police to believe that robbery had not been the motive.

Inquiry was being made today, however, to establish whether any of the murdered men had been entrusted with any considerable sum of money.

Many papers of international importance apparently had not been disturbed. Only small change was found about the floor near the body of Dr. Wong. So would be a .32-calibre revolver, with two cartridges discharged.

Detectives Kelly and Burlingame, accompanied by Kong Li, left early today for New York to conduct a search for a Chinaman named Z. S. Wan, who is said to have been a guest at the Chinese headquarters.

The police have been informed that Dr. Wong usually had several thousand dollars in cash in his possession. Expenses of the students over this country, however, were paid by checks approved by the Chinese Legation, so that it is not believed any large sum was taken by the slayers.

The police have a theory that the three may have been slain by one of the members of a secret society.

Dr. Wong's daughter is a student at the University of Michigan, at Ann Arbor, Mich.

The Chinese educational mission supervises the spending of $13,000,000 fund which was part of the $24,000,000 indemnity levied on China by the United States after the Boxer uprising and which this government returned to China on the condition it would be devoted to the education of Chinese students in the United States.

Tickets will be on sale at the Special Aid headquarters, No. 377 Boylston street.

CONGRESSMEN AT FRONT IN QUEER GARB

Frock Coat, Khaki Shirt, Leggins and Derby Hat One Statesman's Combination

By BERT FORD.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

With the American Army of Occupation in Germany, Feb. 1.—A deep impression has been made everywhere by the American soldiers," said Mrs. Frank Nelson Doubleday of New York city, who, with her husband, the publisher, is visiting the German territory occupied by United States troops.

"I interviewed a German farmer who was intelligent and conversant with affairs, and he told me that the people did not want the Kaiser any more because he had run away," continued Mrs. Doubleday.

"He said the people had more respect for the Crown Prince because he had stayed home. The farmer said he had heard that there were 2,000,000 Americans in the war and he was amazed when I told him that 2,000,000 soldiers had been brought over. He said he had been led to believe that the Americans were 'bluffs' but soon discovered that the doughboys were dangerous foes.

"I was astounded at German subsistence, even the officers bought my husband a paper shirt for a souvenir and also some tablecloths."

Many American Congressmen are arriving in Coblenz daily on sight-seeing tours. They are so numerous that the doughboys are wondering who is attending to government affairs at Washington. The correspondents who have lived and even slept in their uniforms for a year were literally astounded on seeing civilian clothes, but they are indebted to the change since they have seen another of the rare worn by the American war visitors.

For some mysterious reason the politicians think they must wear something military. They compromise on flannel shirts and puttees. One Congressman arrived today wearing boy scout leggings over his dress trousers and a frock coat. Also, he was adorned with a khaki shirt and an army overcoat with a M. C. U. S. A. patch on the sleeve. He wore a derby hat.

Another Congressman wore a corduroy suit with leather puttees strapped the wrong way. They accuse themselves of being more comfortable in straight civilian attire. The correspondents have doubted these visits of the "Solons" to the front.

PETERS TO INSIST ON TROOPS ARRIVING HERE

Unless two ships of returning soldiers arrive in Boston before next Wednesday, Mayor Peters will go to Washington to enter a formal protest at the long delay, according to Acting Adjutant General Gosthals notified the Northeastern Department that beginning with the week of Feb. 9 and continuing until all troops had returned, two transports would arrive in Boston each week. No word has been received by the Northeastern Department that any troop ships would arrive this week.

PORTLAND GIRL SOLE WITNESS OF ATROCITIES

Her Story Feared by Turks, Declares Former Ambassador Elkus

Chicago, Feb. 1.—Waiting in a Portland, Me., restaurant as a young American woman who Abram I. Elkus, former ambassador to Turkey, declares may be the only living eye witness, except the Turks themselves, of the atrocities committed by the Turks on the Armenians in the enforced deportation from Armenia.

Mr. Elkus divulged to give her name, declaring:

"She has escaped a lot of dangers, but it is not over yet. Something may happen to her yet."

Her testimony will be mainly valuable, Mr. Elkus said, as to the evidence that the Turks could control the subject Armenians when they had sufficient reason.

"This woman had married a banker in Scotland," said Mr. Elkus, "and had gone with him to his native country to claim a patrimony, when the war broke out. She was the only eye-witness to the Turkish atrocities. She was taken prisoner by the Turks, confined in a prison in Aleppo, and subsequently released upon the urgent demand of the American ambassador, and returned to the United States."

TRADE BOARD OF BROOKLINE HITS PETERS' PLAN

W. D. Allen Declares Town Will Not Be Benefited by Joining Boston

Brookline would not receive any benefits by becoming a part of Boston, according to W. D. Allen, chairman of the legislative committee of the Brookline Board of Trade, in a letter received by the American, he declares that Brookline has many advantages that Boston has not, and that Mayor Peters' program of annexation would be injurious to the welfare of the town. The letter, in part, follows:

"Mayor Peters' Annexation Bill is to my mind, one of the most important pieces of legislation that will come before the present session of the legislature this term, and yet so far as one has answered the arguments of his backers or given reasons why they had sufficient reason.

"This woman had married a banker in Scotland," said Mr. Elkus, "and had gone with him to his native country to claim a patrimony, when the war broke out. She was the only eye-witness to the Turkish atrocities. She was taken prisoner by the Turks, confined in a prison in Aleppo, and subsequently released upon the urgent demand of the American ambassador, and returned to the United States."

MALE "LUCILLE" FAINTS IN COURT

Deveulle Scathingly Arraigned by Prosecutor in "Billie" Carlton Case

London, Feb. 1.—Half fainting and shuddering Regnie Deveulle, London's famous male "Lucille," charged with international drug scandals involving the decline of prominent actress headed in New York and London, was arraigned before Magistrate Marsh here today on the charge of murdering his daughter Iodged against him in connection with the death from cocaine of Phillip Carling, British and American stage favorite.

A sensation was caused when the damning testimony, under oath, of the fainting informant by Prosecutor Muir, was wheeled into the police court. The court doctor was called and he said the nurse of the defendant was very ill and he feared she would not be able to give her customary drugs. The case was postponed.

Deveulle was remanded in custody for a fortnight.

The prosecutor said that Lionel Belcher, a moving picture actor, and Grace Richardson, an Anglo-American stage favorite, might or might not be regarded as accomplices of Deveulle in illegally furnishing cocaine to Miss Carlton.

LUMBER FIRE BUG AT WORCESTER STILL BUSY

Worcester, Feb. 1.—Although the police captured one youth alleged to be implicated in previous fires, the Worcester lumber fire bug continues his operations. The Baker Lumber company plant on Millbury street is the latest object of his attention. At least the police and firemen believe that the fire which damaged the property to the extent of $10,000 is of incendiary origin.

There have been four big fires at local lumber yards within the last year. Charles Stimpson, arrested on the charge of arson, is accused of being implicated in the starting of at least two lumber yard fires.

COUNSEL SCORE INDICTMENT OF 30 FISH MEN

Lawyers Maintain It Is Faulty in That It Does Not Sufficiently Set Out Offence

The new indictment which was found by the Suffolk County Grand Jury against the thirty defendants who are charged with having raised the price of fish, was attacked by counsel on the ground that it did not sufficiently set out an offence.

Judge Dana ruled that a previous indictment alleging a monopoly could not be maintained as it was not a crime at common law, as was claimed by the government.

To move that defect a second presentment was made by the Grand Jury, which alleged a conspiracy on the part of the defendants to increase the price of fish in war time. Now it is contended by the defendants that the indictment too, is faulty.

It is expected Judge Dana will render a decision before February 15, the day assigned for a trial of the case.

FATHER HICKEY NEW COADJUTOR BISHOP

Clinton, Feb. 1.—Rev. William A. Hickey, for the past two years pastor of St. John's Church of this town, received word today of the confirmation by Pope Benedict of his appointment of titular bishop of Guadapoli, and his assignment to be coadjutor bishop to Rt. Rev. Mathew Harkins of the Providence diocese. Fr. Hickey was born in Worcester in 1870 and was graduated later on from Worcester Classical High School and Holy Cross, class of 1890.

A BOSTON BOY IN A BOSTON PULPIT

Bishop Herman B. Page of Spokane, Wash., is to preach in St. Paul's Cathedral Sunday morning at 11 o'clock on "Religion in the Family." Bishop Page was born in Boston, trained in our public schools, at Harvard and the Theological School in Cambridge. He spent many years in Chicago and then was made bishop of Spokane. He unites a fine Boston tradition with the fresh and vigorous outlook of the West.

Compositions by some of the greatest composers in America will be published in the coming patriotic song series.

'FIGHT TO FINISH' FOR 48-HOUR MILL WEEK

Labor Unions at Odds Over Demands; 700,000 Workers Involved

their doors on Monday with the expectation that large numbers of employes would go to work as usual.

A meeting under Socialist auspices will be held tomorrow in Eagle Hall according to posters distributed at the meeting where the strike vote was taken.

Labor leaders in Lawrence declared that the strike spirit was as turbulent today as it was in 1912. The difference is that the public appears divided against itself, the English speaking workers and the foreign element favors.

It is expected that the former element will return to work on Monday, while the picketing will be done by the latter, the bulk of the foreign workers are employed in the American woolen mills. Should the offer of a 48-hour week without reduction of pay was rejected, Lawrence mill owners will open their doors on Monday at 7 a. m. under the same schedule of hours which existed up until noon today and which will exist until 5:44.

WILL OPEN MONDAY.

Agent Walker of the Pacific Mills in Lawrence, employing about 10,000, said:

"We shall open on Monday as usual and I for one believe that the majority of workers will be on the job and ready to work."

A strike of the 700,000 textile workers of New England on Monday is predicted by labor men advocating a walkout.

LEADER'S NAME JEERED.

New England will be hardest hit if the textile trades are paralyzed, and this section of the country also stands to greatest loss in the murder if the strike materializes and becomes a long-drawn-out battle. It is mainly among the mill owners of the textile workers in this part of the country and the public generally that reflect the policies and inspiration of suggestions from their English-speaking comrades.

The situation is further complicated by the fact that the president of the Golden, president of the United Textile Workers of America, has been openly flouted by textile workers, notably in Lawrence.

The introduction of his name there at a meeting before a strike was greeted with cries of "traitor" and "fraud." His request that the Lawrence strikers await the arrival of one of his agents was jeered in a dozen languages.

English-speaking labor leaders have been forced to admit their impotency in many of the industrial centres, and the control of the unions which are supposed to have general charge of union problems are not even invited to attend conferences.

LABOR DEMANDS VARY.

The procedure of the operatives will vary according to the make-up of the unions and the demands of the men.

In many mills the men and women plan to go to work as usual Monday morning and quit at the end of an eight-hour day. In this case the next move will be up to the mill owner.

In the case of the mills where the employes demand a forty-eight-hour week with fifty-four hours' pay, control will remain with the employers in the morning and formally apply for the time lost if they are refused, as they undoubtedly will be, the hands will quit their work at the machines and the strike will be on.

Governor Coolidge is to be petitioned by the Lawrence strikers to be ready to dispatch State troops at an hour's notice, in case trouble arises.

The radical leaders of Lawrence who made up the Lawrence textile workers of that city inevitable are today preparing a warm welcome for Irving Rexiere, representing the Industrial Workers of the United States Workers, and John Ramsey, leader of the strike.

DEADLOCK HOLDS IN FISHING STRIKE

Settlement of the fishermen's strike is held up on the refusal of the committee to grant the demands of the captains for raises of fishing boats for more pay.

It is announced by the Atlantic Fishing Company it is expected that if the captains get all they ask they will receive anything $12,000 a year, the salary of a member of President Wilson's cabinet.

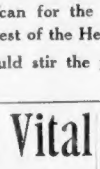
Strong Poland Vital to Peace of Europe

By DR. E. J. DILLON.

Special Cable to the Boston American and Philadelphia Public Ledger. (Copyright in the United States and Canada by the Philadelphia Ledger Company. Copyright in Europe by London Daily Telegraph.)

Paris, Feb. 1.—The lectures on the politics, geography, history and economics of northeastern Europe which the Polish and Czecho-Slovak delegates have been delivering before the supreme council in the sessions of the last few days are warmly welcomed by those plenipotentiaries, to whom they are most helpful. But they can hardly yield adequate data for the serious work of reconstruction, and where two contradictory theses are put forward it seems essential that plenipotentiaries should possess a criterion by which to sift argument from fallacy and decide between them.



DR. E. J. DILLON

"Like the reallotment of the German colonies, and indeed all practical matters to be submitted to the delegates. Polish affairs are sure to bring out in sharp relief two opposite currents of thought which will variously affect the judgments and sway the acts of the world's law-givers.

The problem is the prevention of war. It may be solved at some future time by moral means, by a regeneration of mankind. But the peoples won't wait until then, and meanwhile statesmen insist on the necessity of some practical accomplishing the task—force. With force they must equip either the respective nations or a supernational power.

Those possess the real power, and as they shrink from intrusting a large army to supernational institution and sacrificing a portion of their own sovereignty, there remains only the people itself to rely on. Hence arming but not reflecting the spirit of pacific nations and reduction of aggressive states to military impotence. Any attempt to combine the two will only eliminate the essential factor—the peoples will tolerate the application of the old system and carry over if the strife materializes and becomes a long-drawn-out battle. For a mainly industrial country like one of the textile workers in the part of the country are forced to accept and reflect the policies and inspiration of suggestions from their English-speaking comrades.

The situation is further complicated by the fact that the president of the Golden, president of the United Textile Workers of America, has been openly flouted by textile workers, notably in Lawrence.

GOMPERS SAYS WILSON IS FOR PLAIN PEOPLE

By SAMUEL GOMPERS.

President of the American Federation of Labor and member of President Wilson as the American representative on the Labor Commission to the Peace Conference.

(Written Especially for Universal Service.)

Paris, Feb. 1.—I am asked to give my view of the meaning of President Wilson's statement, made last Saturday to the peace conference in Paris, of the League of Nations, viz.:

The select classes of mankind are no longer the governors of mankind. The people are the governors of mankind now in the hands of the plain people of the whole world."

The President's statement should be interpreted in the light of what has been accomplished by it alone. His statement is not directed especially at the foreign committee, but at the whole conference and peace commission—as well.

What do we mean when we say we want the government of our country to be in the hands of plain people. We mean it shall be taken out of the control of the financial and corporate power that has sought to domesticate Germany from distrubing the normal existence of nations.

Therefore, if Poland is not rendered economically self-sustained and politically capable of governing her own integrity and independence by domestic and foreign control, but without violating the rights of others, the conference is raising from the dead not a potential friend but a future foe of the Teutonic race who will one day step reased into the ranks of the revived enemy.

DEMANDS OF POLAND.

Poland now demands from Germany, Posen, West Prussia, East Prussia, Upper Silesia and parts of Middle Silesia, German colonization, combined with coercion, are answerable for some Teutonized districts in Posen. Even the Polish nation, this humiliation made considerable headway, but the Poles maintain that a majority of seventy-five per cent. in West Prussia is claimed by Poland. Without this province, including Danzig and the Hinterland, Poland may be reasserted only to be again Germanized, for being surrounded by German possessions to the west and the north, she would be overwhelmed by German economic influence in peace and strategically outflanked in warfare and could not afford a free barrier but a bridge for Germany into Russia.

CASE OF EAST PRUSSIA.

The Poles plead that geographically East Prussia is a part of Polish territory, while historically it is not German country at all, but belongs to a section of the Indo-European family whose language is extinct. But the main argument is this: East Prussia must belong to Poland if Poland is to exist. The existence of this State without access to the sea, the rivers, the Vistula and Niemen, was one of the principal causes of that kingdom's downfall.

In answer to the claim put forward by the Czecho-Slovaks for Upper Silesia, which possess the richest coal deposits on the continent of Europe, which once that of the German industries draw their supplies, the Poles point out that all of Upper Silesia, together with three districts of Middle Silesia belong to Poland from time immemorial. Only some territories are still Polish, containing only an inconsiderable portion of Germans. Geographically they constitute a part of Poland and form a binding link with the Czecho-Slovak State.

Germany will have won the war if allowed to retain possession of the Baltic coast as far as estuary of the Niemen, as she will have entire command of Baltic and this, with a strong strategical position in Silesia and the Masurian Lake district of East Prussia, will render Poland's existence dependent on her sufferance.

CAMP AT BREST RAPIDLY BEING IMPROVED

General Glenn Reports Embarkation Point in France Can Never Be Attractive

By FRANK A. STETSON, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, Feb. 1.—"Conditions at Pontanezu, our embarkation camp at Brest, are being improved as rapidly as is humanely possible."

This is the statement made today by Major-General Edward F. Glenn, U. S. A., who recently returned with his division, the 83rd from Ohio, from that port, concerning which numerous charges have been made as to unsanitary condition. General Glenn made a thorough inspection of conditions there, including his duties as commanding officer of troops, and his statement may be regarded as an official report.

"The situation at Brest is very simply" continued the general. "There are terrible natural conditions to deal with, but as it has the best harbor on the west coast of France for our purpose—the rapidity of troop movements that the people of the United States demand—it has to be used.

"The constant rains produce mudholes of it—and that is not easily drained, and the camp will always be unattractive to a visitor. Paradoxical as it might seem, there is a shortage of water for the various camp uses, including drinking water. The condition, however, is being remedied.

"Permanent roads are being constructed, and a very large amount of temporary construction work is under way. Engineers are working night and day on these improvements at Camp Pontanezu.

"All the buildings are occupied by troops at the camp have flooring, and that used to use were being rapidly equipped in a like manner. The kitchens all have cement floor and the mess halls have a large amount of flooring.

"Camp Pontanezu is situated about four miles from the beach or docks at Brest. It never has been very attractive as long as the weather continues as it usually is at that time of year, and I understand such weather is typical of the country. It is not strange and was not regarded as a most unsatisfactory camp, but it must be used if we continue to maintain the rapidity of movement of our overseas forces now in progress."

BALKAN PUZZLE TAKEN UP BY COUNCIL

Special Attention Given Controversy Between Serbia and Rumania

By International News Service.

Paris, Feb. 1.—Insofar as another plenary session of the peace conference being held today, the supreme inter-allied council met again at the foreign office to consider Balkan problems.

The controversy between Serbia and Rumania has been deeply occupying the attention of the representatives of the "Big Five," who realize fully the dangers attending the Balkan territorial disputes. This controversy is understood to hinge upon counter claims made to territory that formerly belonged to Austria-Hungary.

President Wilson and the premiers and foreign secretaries of the allied associated powers are treating the Balkan problem cautiously, not because of the national jealousies in the Balkans, but because of the large number of human beings involved in the final settlement.

The population of Banat, which is subject to rival claims, is upwards of 500,000 persons. Next week will be a busy one for the committees dealing with the league of nations, international labor legislation, financial problems and war responsibility.

It is understood that the colonial question, upon which it has been agreed to accept President Wilson's principle of internationalization, was not discussed in detail yesterday, and it was not known if it would be treated today.

TAX CHECKS RUSHED AS CITY YEAR CLOSES

Tax collections made on the eve of subscription to the city's fiscal year amounted to $241,000, and special assessments, particularly those for congregationalists, made the total receipts for the day $275,000. The week's collections made the total of uncollected taxes to $6,000,000, or a million and a half more than that for the week's end. The Boston Consolidated Gas Company sent its check for $150,000, in payment of its $320,000 assessment.

SUE FOR MILLIONS ON AIR PATENTS

Two hundred dollars is claimed for every machine turned out with a device invented by the Wright Brothers.

Why Dread Old Age?

Every Picture tells a Story

It doesn't matter how old you are, if you keep well and active. Lots of folks are younger at 70 than others are at 40. Backache, pain, stiffness, rheumatic joints; bad eyesight and deafness are too often due to neglected kidney trouble, not to advancing years. Don't let weak kidneys age you. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. They have made life more comfortable for thousands of elderly folks.

Boston Testimony

Mrs. Frank Hayes, 42 Dover street, says: "Some years ago I was in a run down condition from kidney trouble. I had terrible pains in my kidneys and I could scarcely sleep on account of the backache. I had dizzy spells and often fell over and specks floated before my eyes. I was nervous and felt tired and languid. Doan's Kidney Pills, which I got at Jones' Drug Store, did me of all trouble."

MOTHER WAITS FOR 'NAT,' HER 'LITTLE BOY'

Pays Touching Tribute to Love and Devotion of Actor-Son

By HAZEL CANNING.

"Your prayers have pulled me through."

So wrote Nat Goodwin to the mother whom he loved, Mrs. Nathaniel C. Goodwin, Sr., the white-haired, gentle lady, over eighty years old, who sits today in a sunny parlor of mid-Victorian days, waiting with longing the last homecoming of her son. And it was she who told of this most precious message of all her son had ever sent her—"your prayers have pulled me through."

"It was after Nat's last operation," she said, "the one just a few weeks ago, when his eye was removed.

"We knew, his father and I, just what was the matter. For there was that choice between our son and the truth spared not the truth. Nat knew that mother would never forgive him if he had not told her just what was the matter with her boy. So he had his secretary write for him—he was too weak and ill. And his mother stayed."

WAITS FOR NAT, HER BOY.

The little white-haired lady in the parlor of yesterday untangled with her tears. And memory was tender within her these last hours that she waits before her boy comes home for good. And she mourns, not as a mother for a famous son, but as a plain mother for an ordinary little boy; as a mother might mourn for her child, suddenly stricken while playing just beyond her sight and hearing. For, as Mrs. Goodwin said, "he was always just my little child to me."

So, as she waits, she gathers together his pictures, telling of the times and the occasions when they were taken. And Nat Goodwin's old mother is the very best authority on her boy's pictures, whether they be of him in the boyish waits of thirty-five days or of the famous actor, on the first night he appeared in Shylock.

"There was never a week in my son's entire life," the mother went on with his pictures all about her, "but he wrote home to father and to mother. For the last four weeks, in which he has been so ill, the letters came just the same—though the boy had to dictate them to his secretary. Your newspapers, the public, knew him as the public man, the great actor. They knew him for his works, the parts he played.

"But to his mother that was the very least important part of Nat Goodwin. For his mother knew the real man, as he was, her boy grown up, and to know him thus was not given to any—all the public, nor even any of his friends, to know.

LEFT ALL TO PARENTS.

"The papers have said, most falsely, that one-third of Nat's property was left to a friend, who, was with him at the last. Nothing could be farther from the truth. Every penny was left to his father and mother. It is now to that," this is the statement of Nat Goodwin's cousin, Clara, who lives with the actor's parents.

But it was of the real Nat Goodwin that his mother spoke. "There was only one place where Nat was his real self. That was here at home. There was one place in the world where he loved to be the most. That was also here at home. There was just one place in the world where he would travel half the night after the theatre let out at midnight, to be at breakfast time, and that was here with his mother, in his own home, where he grew up.

"For many years ago the world took my boy from me and made him famous—a great actor. And so he was. But before being a great actor he was a great son. Mother never bore, nor loved, nor prayed for a better son than he. Mother never had paid to her by her son greater devotion—blessed memories."

So they give out the message, with heavy-hearted, "Please say, won't you kindly that we want our boy to ourselves—now? Say we want him just for ourselves, at last, and even as we had him just to ourselves in the beginning. This morning at the Lambs' Club in New York there will be services for the public and his friends out in the world. And then he is coming home—to rest.

"Monday our own pastor, the Rev. Kenneth Jaynes, will read for us here the Episcopal burial service. And then we will lay our boy away in Milton, in our family lot."

Mother Pleads for Last Hours Alone With Goodwin

"Please say, won't you kindly, that we want our boy to ourselves—now? Say we want him just for ourselves at the end, even as we had him just to ourselves at the beginning.

"Just say death knows no greatness, only home ties of primitive love.

"So please thank the public—Nat's public—for all the messages and the sympathy. He would wish it. And won't you add the funeral is just for his family. Then we shall lay our boy away in Milton in the family lot."—Message to the public, through the Boston American, by Nat Goodwin's mother.

FAVOR CLOSING CHEAP AUCTION ROOMS NIGHTS

Police Receive Many Complaints from People Who Are Victimized

Cheap auction rooms where the gullible are sold cheap jewelry and other merchandise at high prices would cease to exist if the police of Boston's downtown stations had their way.

A bill to prohibit or regulate such places after 5 o'clock in the afternoon has been introduced in the Legislature by John D. Hughes, representing the Worcester Chamber of Commerce, and has been urged by jewelers and other merchants.

CATER TO "SUCKER."

"It would be a good thing if they closed such places altogether," said a Boston police captain, discussing the bill and the cheap auction rebuttal.

"These places must not be confused with legitimate auction rooms where furniture and other high-grade merchandise is sold. These places cater particularly to the 'sucker,' the young boy fooled by the glitter of sham jewelry, and the out-of-town visitor more wealthy than wise.

"They are gathering places for loafers.

"Hardly a day passes that we don't receive complaints from persons who have been victimized in them. And the complaints we receive represent but a small portion of the people victimized, for many of them go down and take their trains back home without entering any complaint.

"Although such places flourish chiefly after 5 in the afternoon, doing their best business after glittering lights, they are open in the daytime, and might as well be closed for all time as simply after 5 o'clock.

"At noon they get a crowd of youngsters who eagerly part with their money for worthless trinkets of various kinds. The money they make in this way practically pays their expenses, and the profits of the big night trade is 'all velvet,' as they say.

DO BIG BUSINESS.

"The fact that they can keep four or five people employed all the time, in addition to those employed as bid-ders-in or 'cappers,' shows that they must do a big business and make money.

"Their system is to knock down a few things for almost nothing to one of their cappers, and thus lead the inexperienced into bidding. Getting excited the victim continues to bid until he is offering far more for the watch, ring or whatever it may be than it is worth. Then it is promptly sold to him.

"Very often when he goes to pay for it, he is told: We have something much better than that for a dollar or two more, and he is led into purchasing something still more expensive.

"In this way men and boys have paid four and five times their value for cheap watches and other jewelry. "These places cause us more trouble day in and day out than any other places in our districts."

"OAK LEAF ROLLER" A NEW TREE PEST

Property owners of Newton are warned against the "oak leaf roller," an insect entirely new in Massachusetts and one which Forest Commissioner William W. Colton of Newton says is liable to do a great deal more damage than the gypsy moth. The insect is a small green caterpillar which attacks oak trees. Arsenate of lead has no effect on the pest, and the only way to save valuable oak trees is thoroughly spraying with miscible oil before the buds open, followed by a spray of nicotine and soap after the leaves unfold.

COTTON WORKERS WIN BIG BOMBAY STRIKE

Exclusive Cable by the International News Service and the London Daily Express.

London, Feb. 1.—The Bombay cotton strike has come to an end as a result of the following typical Indian rules, said a dispatch from Bombay today: "The workers told the employers they would lie down in front of the cotton shops and the owners would have to walk over their bodies in order to enter. This threat was carried out while enormous crowds looked on in sympathy. Then the employers surrendered unconditionally."

PARIS CAFES ASK LATER CLOSING

Paris, Feb. 1. — Elimination of restrictions on nearly all articles of food except sugar, chocolate and bread in Paris restaurants has caused a renewal of the demand that cafes be permitted to remain open after 9:30 at night. Restaurateurs declare that it is unfair to permit cafes in Lille, Metz and Coblenz to remain open until 11 in the evening and midnight while they are compelled to close earlier. There is a great scarcity of eggs, milk, butter and cheese in the Paris restaurants.

SEVEN FACE CHARGE OF CRAP SHOOTING

Seven men arrested on a charge of gambling at Long Wharf appeared in the Municipal Court today, the first caught in an intensive campaign against gambling which has been started by Captain James F. Sullivan of the City Hall avenue police station. It is said to be the custom to shoot crap at Long Wharf while Patrolman Garrity, the officer on duty, was at his home for dinner. Garrity, knowing of the habits of the gamblers, had the detail of five officers raid the wharf during the noon hour.

ADVISED TO DROP NON-PAYING LINES

Providence, Feb. 1.—Governor Beekman today stated that the Rhode Island Assembly can do nothing for the Rhode Island Street Car Company, and advised a complete reorganization, with the dropping of lines that do not pay. "It is a purely business proposition," he said, "and must be handled in a business way." Receiver Swan is making a move to give the 2,500 employes of the road $60,000 to $70,000 back pay that is due them.

McINTYRE AND HEATH AT MAJESTIC

One of the things the general public misses is personal acquaintance with the gentlemen who propagate publicity, vulgarly known as press agents.

Among the most astute an owner of these genius is wheezy Jim Decker, the Sphynx of Forty-Second street. Mr. Decker wields a fluid typewriter, and he doesn't draw the color line, for he came to Boston representing McIntyre and Heath, the blackface comedians, in a brand new musical comedy entitled "Hello Alexander."

It is reported that if either Mr. Intyre or Heath get in Jim Decker's guess in and substitutes for the wish one, the covering of burnt cork making itself readily to deception.

The that as it may, as George Munro used to say, Signor Decker swears and affirms that "Hello Alexander" is a "god darned good show," and as he hasn't any interest in the attraction except to popularize it, he is quite likely to be speaking the truth.

As I write these lines John Little calls me on to announce that Decker is known as the "Silver Voiced Tenor of Valley Cottage" and that his views on prohibition are unfit to print.

McIntyre and Heath, the blackface comedians, haven't been seen in Boston for some years. They are touring with a fat, elaborate invention, full of pretty girls and hard working actors.

Try It and See.

One of the most amusing incidents of "The Crowded Hour" in the vaudeville act, when several American soldiers and war workers in France are endeavoring to teach some French peasants the words of "The Star-Spangled Banner."

One American after the other is exhausted and fails to get the proper tones correctly, and the doughboys give it up, and sing instead "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here."

Finally a French officer arrives who recites the American National Anthem beautifully to end with great dramatic effect. Naturally our soldiers are somewhat ashamed to find a foreigner acquainted with a song which they did not know themselves.

It is a fact that "The Star-Spangled Banner" is very hard to learn and its sonorous measures do not stick in the memory. For the past two years we have heard the melody every time we went to the theatre or concert hall, but if you cared collect one hundred people and ask them to repeat the words, you would find that "the twilight's last gleaming" through the first stanza without stuttering, that seven-eighths would be unable to remember any of the second stanza, and not more than one in the whole house quite the entire poem, with the additional stanza by Oliver Wendell Holmes.

The fact is that national anthems are rarely very popular with the people to whom they belong. We imagine the French don't make the hotels stand on the Marne and singing with fervor the immortal "The Marseillaise."

Instead, the time the song be pulled don't want to hear. Miss Elizabeth Amsden, American opera singer, told me of going to a Paris hospital and singing "The Marseillaise" to the wounded soldiers. Such an encore that I was compelled to stop. "Don't sing that. We're sick of it," cried the patients. "Sing some American ragtime."

Shaw Cuts Tree.

Edmund Gurney, "Bill Bill" of the "Better 'Ole," created the part of "Doolittle the Dustman" in Bernard Shaw's "Pygmalion," which Mrs. Pat Campbell and Sir Herbert Tree starred in London.

Every actor who ever associated with Shaw remembers something amusing about that eccentric playwright, and Gurney is no exception.

Tree and Shaw were always quarrelling about the characterization of the role of Professor Higgins.

"Sir Herbert Tree," said Shaw, "I want this character to be a gentleman—not one who sits on the piano and throws books about."

"Mr. Shaw," retorted Sir Herbert, "this is the first time I have ever been insulted in my own theatre. I must be treated with respect."

"That's all right," replied Shaw. "Don't get excited. You'll have every respect for you and think if you only had the right discipline you would have been a gentleman."

Mr. Gurney also recalls a conference between Shaw, Granville Barker, Leigh and the late Sidney Drake, a pair of authors who collaborated, but were always at loggerheads with each other. Shaw was a pronounced Agnostic and one day Leigh, coming into the Savage Club and finding Bishop Welldon there, entered in the visitors' book wrote immediately underneath:

"Would be heard my language highly applaud

That Credo does not believe in Christ;
But what need really this to know...
Is whether Christ believes in Credo."

Stone Is Tricky.

Hang it all, you almost cannot make that Fred Stone believe he is what you suppose he is or was or now?

Nothing less than legerdemain, one night last week he entered his wife's dressing room at the Colonial theatre, wearing the hat he wore in the "Jack o' Lantern" ballet. Now this hat had spoke a rabbit out of it, and placed it on her dressing table. Then he pulled a couple of gold fish out of the coat sleeves when she wasn't looking, and put them on her platter.

Then he produced a pack of cards, and tore them in two with a simple twist of the wrist, until Miss Carter nearly fainted.

Anyone would think who has seen "Jack o' Lantern" that Fred Stone had quite enough to do eight times each week without going into rabbit stunts, and other mysteries of sleight-of-hand. He chases better than Charmion; rides through plate glass window on a horse; dives through a paper hoop and emerges as a clown, and does other acrobatic feats that would take moments for the rest of their natural lives to be gone to for prodigious.

"What more do you desire?" Does it not seem to some subsequent generation position for him to come out on the stage with a mess mussable and say, "Please give imitations of Heinrich the first?" No one need be surprised if this is so. One can picture him as the versatile Jim in "Rich, Rich," and as the horseback rider, so nothing he does need cause any pang or any astonishment.

Leg-leg-Legacy.

It was hardly from proper question for a bashful young man to ask, but someone or other, after seeing Emilie Lea, the high-kicking marvel with Fritz Scheff in "California, John Cort's musical comedy which enters upon the last week of its Boston engagement at the Tremont, Monday night, inquired impulsively, "How did you get those legs?" I mean later limbs?"

That wasn't exactly what he meant to say. He was hurried, but he meant to say was—well, no matter. Miss Lea took the question quite seriously and answered it in part as follows:

"They were a legacy," she declared. "A legacy from dad."

The fact was more of a boy than ever. There was an awkward pause. But maybe it will out, and so will curiosity. There was a mental picture before the inquirer of a tall, slim young woman whose supports and understandings indicated 6 o'clock.

"I have been kicking since I was four years old, when I made my debut in Cleveland, Ohio," she explained. "I was a high kicker and neither was a boy. I was the first grandfather I ever had. My father all he knew about high kicking and my paternal grandmother taught me. Kicking is a science. I say that they (and she looked demurely at her feet) are distinctly professionals are a legacy. Isn't that correct?"

Miss Lea thinks I don't know so much about my grandparents as they didn't travel with me. I did my kicking alone and me, but father was a wonderful high kicker and contortionist, and he thought the art of kicking a dancer held nine feet high. He was a remarkably powerful man. He said he father was even stronger than my Mother appeared professionally as a dancer for several years, and my parents were both professionals. Her mother was a dancer and her father a grand opera singer.

A Pretty Little Vamp.

In Lombardi Ltd. there is one [illegible] Phyllis Manning, who plays Lombardi and elopes with a [illegible] has offered her power.

It is just one of the drama's idiosyncrasies that the young lady was engaged by Mr. Belasco after seeing and witnessing of the boards.

Winifred Hyson made her debut with the Belasco Morosco's stock companies in Los Angeles. She remained there three years, paying [illegible] opportunity Morosco for an opportunity to appear in New York with [illegible] Belasco production.

The [illegible] came when Sue Marmanden, who played the Vampire of Lombardi, left the company to go to South New York, and remembering a promising young soul to California for Miss Hyson.

She went over big and has played the part with great success ever since. Like all vampires, she doesn't admire the role and wouldn't like to be a vampire in real life, but most wrongly persecuted therefore.

A Freedman From Cork.

Boston feminism are now feeling a keen personal loss in the departure of the Chicago Opera Company. Isn't coming to Boston, since they heard that a new Irish tenor named John O'Sullivan is electrifying Chicago Opera in New York.

It seems that Campanini wanted the greatest French tenor in France to replace Muratore, who lost his voice early in the year and withdrew from the Chicago. Accordingly he sent around the world for one and received from John O'Sullivan of Cork, Ireland, guaranteed by the impresario of the Paris Opera. Here is the greatest exponent of French opera then in France, the best in the world, and Chicago has had to turn to an Irishman to install her standard. The poor, misled Mr. Campanini, reports that he was a pronounced Agnostic and one day Leigh, coming into the Savage Club and finding Bishop Welldon there, entered in the visitors' book wrote immediately underneath:

"Would be heard my language highly applaud

That Credo does not believe in Christ;
But what need really this to know...
Is whether Christ believes in Credo."

Sticks Up for Bill.

Edward Walton, who plays with distinguished success the role of Sir Frederick Singleton in the "Eyes of Youth" at the Willbur, has known or played with almost every famous actor and actress in the entire profession. His greatest admiration is for the great Shakespearean actor of the past, and he says yesterday he said with conviction.

"Shakespeare can be popularized" he said with conviction. "All that is required is companies of intelligent people who know what they are doing and who think more of faithfully delineating the characters and their parts than of putting forth their own ego and dramatic pretensions.

"What has been done in London is evidence enough for anyone that Shakespeare is not above the heads of the people and that they will come in to see Shakespearian drama if it is intelligently presented to them. In London at the "Old Vic" even all through the war, large audiences were attracted with Shakespeare as the sole offering. Why cannot the same thing be done here?

"Good and cheap performances of the works of the Bard of Avon ought to be arranged. Those which have been given here in recent years have generally paid their producers well. The people like Shakespeare."

Traveled on a Dog License.

Harry Clarke, who plays a young Dane in "The Kiss Burglar," would make a good reporter in real life, for he gets what he goes after.

Clarke was in London four years ago waiting news from his wife, Nora Hayes, who had been ill in Germany, and was supposed to be making her way out of that country. No tidings from her Clarke decided to go to Paris as the most likely place to find her.

He had run across Vernon Castle, and as the latter was bound to France to secure a police dog which he had left there until he could get permission to bring him into England the two decided to travel together.

When they reached Boulogne trouble began. Passports were demanded. Castle had his, but Clarke hadn't thought to secure one, and the French officials regarded him suspiciously.

But in Castle's possession was an English dog license, an elaborate and official looking document, which permitted the bringing of the police dog into England. Clarke seized this from Castle's astonished hand waved it at the French official and said:

"My passport."

The Frenchman inspected it gravely and not knowing a word of English passed it back with a polite bow. Clarke traveled all over France on a dog license.

MAJESTIC THEATRE

Edgar Smith and Emily M. Young in preparing the story for "Hello Alexander" for McIntyre & Heath, has continued the adventures of Henry Jones, proprietor of the "Georgia Minstrel" troupe, and the hungry Alexander, who is forever going from every danger to become a comedian. In the new piece, which encompasses two acts and six scenes, much locale, a limited engagement at the Majestic Theatre next Monday evening. Alexander impersonates Mr. James McIntyre, is discovered on the first scene fight in the livery stable from which he was lured by the flippant and imaginative Henry Jones, impersonated by Thomas Heath.

The second scene occurs at the village tavern where Alexander is discovered as a bill poster putting up the bills for the "Ever-ready Minstrels." The third scene is the interior of a hall in which Henry Jones' "Ever-ready Minstrels" gives a show for the aviators. In the third scene is the Mardi Gras in New Orleans in which Alexander appears as the King of Rhythm. Meanwhile Alexander has married the famous Ruth Ann Morgan, who has been the heroine of all their adventures and Hungry Alexander's adventures. The principal specialties introduced with McIntyre & Heath, including Esther Walker, Johnny Burke, Eva Puck, Thos. Shea & White, Alice Addy, Joe Coffman.

ORPHEUM THEATRE

Two all-star shows of vaudeville in conjunction with unusually good photoplay features are announced for the week at Loew's Orpheum Theatre. Comedy appears to be pre-eminent in the vaudeville offerings, which fact should make for special appeal to film theatre's patrons. Hank Brown, the well-known comedian of the vaudevilles, assisted by little Ida Gunther, will present his funny skit, "Tangled Moments," and Harold Woolf and Helen Stewart will present their brilliant farce comedy, "Major Tactics." Others to appear will be Arnold and Taylor in their comedy skit with songs, "Pat Out"; O'Neil Sisters in songs and dances, and Knapp and Cornalia in eccentric comedy. On the screen there will be shown the latest news pictures, a comedy, and the photoplay, "Happy Though Married," featuring Enid Bennett as a young wife who tries to follow the advice of the writer of a book, the title of which supplies the name of the photoplay. Her difficulties and ensuing experiences form the comedy of the story, which is said to be along a delightful vein.

KEITH'S THEATRE

Ruth St. Denis, the world's exponent of classic dances, is coming to Boston again. She will come to Keith's Theatre next week as the headliner and will offer an entirely new program of medieval and symbolic dances and also a new series of evolutions.

In her great art, Miss St. Denis will be assisted by Doris Humphrey, Betty Hornet and Edna Maloney.

The rest of the bill has Laurie and Bronson, the two midgets, who will offer "Let Ke Be," Dorothy assisted by Princess Olga and Costa Valanta, will present an East Indian Mystic; Francis Kennedy is always popular with her monologue and songs and stories; Ara Sisters will offer an original novelty; Harry and Ann Seymour have an act full of breezy hits and melody; Olga is one of the dancing sensations of the season and is also a clever violinist; Orville Stamm is a former U. S. M. physical instructor; and Yip Yip Yaphanks is an act entitled "A Day in Camp," with Sergeant Frank Milano.

The Pathe Weekly will show the news features.

"POLLY WITH A PAST"

"Polly With a Past," a three-act comedy, by George Middleton and Guy Bolton, will be the attraction at the Tremont Theatre for four weeks, beginning Monday, February 10th. The play, which attained a run of 327 consecutive performances in New York, will be presented by David Belasco with practically the original cast. "Polly With a Past" has an enviable record for prosperity.

"TAKE IT FROM ME"

Owing to the great success of the new musical play, "Take It From Me," Messrs. Shubert have selected it to open at the Shubert Theatre, Monday, February 10th.

Vera Michelena adds to her part as "Movie Vampire" in the inkle-frolic plotted around store scenes. The Shubert-Jones-Hirschfeld-Bellin Jack McGowan to manage the store is a giddy fashion, putting Harry Burnham, the bewhiskered floor-walker and the cashgirls on roller skates to increase the speed. The Conrad A. Douglass Leavitt is the associate manager who has had considerable experience. There keep the fun going. Lenora Thompson as the stenographer sings the "Call of the Wild" number which will be much appreciated. Helen Raftery will be seen as the haughty

"LITTLE SIMPLICITY"

"Little Simplicity," a new musical comedy by Hilda Johnson Young, author of "Maytime," will be presented by the Messrs. Lee and J. J. Shubert at the Wilbur Theatre beginning Monday, February 10th.

Mrs. Young, who has provided the book and lyrics of "Miss Simplicity," is perhaps the most expert musical comedy writer of our day. The score is by Augustus Barratt, whose "Fancy Free" was one of the hits of last season. The piece was staged by Edward P. Temple, the dance numbers arranged by Jack Mason of the New York Winter Garden.

McISAAC says that:

FRED STONE in "Jack O' Lantern" at the Colonial is selling out at all performances and giving a show which more than pleases.

"THE CROWDED HOUR" is one of the most interesting plays yet built upon the war. With Wilette Kershaw, Alan Dinehart and a fine big company it is well worth seeing.

"EYES OF YOUTH," with Alma Tell, ends its engagement in Boston next week. It is a novel sort of play, based upon what a girl saw in a crystal ball. Wilbur Theatre.

"THE KISS BURGLAR" also leaves next week. It is a bright musical comedy with really attractive melodies. Shubert.

LEO CARRILLO in "Lombardi Limited," a very clever character actor, in a cheerful comedy of clothes. Plymouth.

"THE BETTER 'OLE," bright bits of soldier life in the British army by men who know it first hand. Catchy music and a clever troupe. At the Hollis.

FRITZI SCHEFF in "Glorianna," with Herbert Corthell and a good cast. A very high class musical comedy, beautifully done. Tremont. Only one week more.

"THE DOCTOR'S DILEMMA" continues at the Copley. This is one of the most amusing of Shaw's plays and perhaps the best production ever made at the Copley.

MISS DALTON ALL AROUND ACTRESS

The danger of a condition in the theatre which has been discussed and as often condemned portends in the motion picture studio, and in its prospect there are many who are shaking their heads in the prediction that it soon will prevail. This relates to the specializing of classes of work with its players wherein they are given only certain classes of roles because the individual player has happened to win unordinary success portraying a special class of character.

Looking over the list of foremost players of the screen leads one easily to this belief, and the scarcity of artists who can as easily put over a comedy role as a heavy one is marked.

The prevalence of emotional actresses is evident, and the principal idea of comedy on the screen appears to be the indigence in that of the "slapstick" variety. There are a few light comediennes in the studio, but it is a fact that if any on the list were called upon to do emotional work it would result in a deplorable exhibition.

But, happy to state, there are a few actresses in the studio who are equally at home in comedy as they are in heavy drama, and of this list one of the best examples is Dorothy Dalton, whose latest production, "Red Roiled," will be given its first Boston showings through the latter half of next week at the Orpheum Theatre. The reason for this experience lies in the training Miss Dalton had before she went to the studio.

COLUMBIA THEATRE

Marcus Loew's new policy for his Columbia Theatre, which he inaugurated last week in the change of bill each day, has met with such response that it may be proclaimed an unqualified success. The program each day consists of two full-length photoplays, comedies and news pictures, all of late vintage and forming a generous offering. The moderate prices charged form a further magnet for patronage.

LANCASTER THEATRE

It will be a gala week at the Lancaster Theatre in that it marks the showings of the initial release of the United Pictures productions, and marks the introduction of one of a series of first-run photoplays from their studios which shall play this house. With such a popular and capable star as Dustin Farnum, the first entry is exceedingly promising. The bill for the first half will have Alice Brady in "Her Great Chance," and Hal Hamilton in "$5,000 an Hour."

Newbro's Herpicide

Hollywood, Calif. Sept., 26, 1918.

The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

Gentlemen:

After the use of a single bottle of your Herpicide, it was plainly noticeable that my hair had improved to a marked degree. In every possible way the health and vigor, and beautiful luster of my hair was improved to the extent that my friends commented on it. By observation of many artists on the stage and screen, particularly the stars in Paramount Pictures, has taught me the value of beautiful hair. This attribute no doubt aids in the securing of opportunities for many artists.

Cordially yours, Lila Lee

SUBURBAN PICTURE HOUSES

Attractive bills prevail at all the suburban and neighborhood houses next week.

At the Broadway Theatre in Everett on Wednesday and Thursday will be seen Pauline Frederick in "Out of the Shadow" and Madge Kennedy in "A Perfect Lady."

The bill at the Malden Orpheum the first half of the week will be Billie Burke in "The Make Believe Wife," news pictures and comedies.

At the Central Square Theatre in East Boston, Monday and Tuesday the bill will include Evelyn Thaw in "I Want to Forget" and Mae Marsh in "The Racing Strain."

The offering at the Puritan in the South End next Monday and Tuesday will be Julian Eltinge in "Clever Mr. Carfax" and Emily Stevens in "A Man's World."

Folks in Quincy will find a good bill at the Music Hall next week, including the ninth episode of "The Iron Test" and Eddy Polo in "The Lure of the Circus." Charlie Chaplin in "The Rink." Also every Monday, Wednesday and Friday dancing as well as pictures.

The bill at the Institute in East Cambridge today offers Mlle. Paulette in "Runaway Romany" and other features.

At the Union Square, Somerville, Monday and Tuesday will be seen Theda Bara in "The Light" and many up-to-date features.

The Brighton Theatre, Brighton, on Monday will show "Shifting Sands" with an all-star cast, and the tenth episode of "The Iron Test."

At the Dudley Theatre the bill is headed by Louise Alcott's "Little Women," one of the cleverest of recent productions, written at the Alcott home in Concord. As a companion feature Constance Talmadge in "A Lady's Name" is shown. Last half, Norma Talmadge in "Heart of Wetona." Mary Pickford in "Dawn of Tomorrow" and Charlie Chaplin in "A Dog's Life."

Manager Lynch of the Lynn Casino is offering excellent musical programs for the skating multitude which goes on rollers every evening.

WALDRON'S CASINO

The Girls of the U. S. A. come to Waldron's Casino on Monday, when Joe Hurtig will present his all new combination program embracing musical comedy, present day burlesque, highest grade vaudeville and headline acts. The capacity attendance has been the record thus far in the present season's tour of this organization, and is perhaps entirely due to the fact that it is an all new and "entirely different show," with an endless array of brand new features, a snappy olio section that consists in a merry-go-round of fun, song and glitter which serves to introduce the company of nearly half a hundred and includes such celebrities as Lew Hilton, Ina Hayward, Charles Fiske, Foy Peck, John Bollman, Tenny Hilson, Clare Evans, Mlle. Babette and its champion chorus of "Seventeen Attractive Thirty" boys of prize singing beauties.

GAYETY THEATRE

James E. Cooper's new edition of "The Sight-Seers," which comes on Monday to the Gayety Theatre for a week's engagement, has aptly been characterized "A gay, giddy gambol through girl-land." For many seasons this organization has offered unusual diversion for the burlesque devotee, but this year Mr. Cooper has stretched the elastic on his bank-roll for the purpose of giving a hundred per cent. production. William K. Wells is the author of the book and lyrics. He knows every throb in the pulse of the burlesque public and, in his two-act book, "Wait a Minute," he makes no attempt to flaunt a hackneyed plot, but provides a succession of novel scenes which at all times possess a vivid laugh stimulant. Gus Fay is the chief comedian and his high standing as a "popular fun-maker" is a guarantee in itself of the quality of the show from a comedy standpoint. Jim Keathey and Johnnie Walker supplement his comedy work. Katherine Hickey is the prima donna; Flo Davis, the soubrette; Michelina Pennetti, the comedienne; Emily Dyer, the ingenue. Among the others in the cast are Billy Hobert, Lillian Isabella, Gene Lord and Fred Reese.

BURTON HOLMES

Last summer Burton Holmes completed his travels to the allied fronts by becoming the guest of the Supreme Commander of the Italian forces and going under official escort to the principal points of interest in the Italian war zone. His Italian Travelogue begins back in France with a visit to Aix-les-Bains, where the magnificent tourist hotels were converted into rest cures for our wounded soldier boys. Crossing over into Italy, he will take his fellow travelers to Rome, Florence, Bologna, Padua, Venice and scenes along the Piave and other sections of the Italian front.

Mr. Holmes will give "With the Yanks in Italy" at Symphony Hall on Friday evening and Saturday afternoon, February 7th and 8th, and will repeat "With the Yanks in Paris" on Saturday evening, February 8th, the orchestra being out of town that week.

PICTURES SHOW CRUELTIES TO ARMENIANS

American missionaries from the interior of Turkey who witnessed the cruel abuse of the Armenian population by Turkish soldiers were last night given a private showing of "Banished Armenia," the astonishing panorama, which next week will be shown at a return engagement in Symphony Hall.

They declared that the scenes depicted do not approach the actual conditions during the early days of the Turkish massacres in 1915, when the Ottoman government was disposing of Armenians in order to withdraw its soldiers from the fighting fronts.

Mrs. Jeannette Emrich declared that the scenes in which mothers slowly lose their children to be buried alive tells only half of the truth, as women with babes in their arms, met a similar fate.

A story which brings the massacres home to every American was told by Mrs. Emrich, who said that an American girl, from Baltimore, fell into the hands of the Turks, and was most cruelly treated. This girl, the wife of an American physician, who was practicing at Monash, when the Turks seized her husband, they threatened to give the young wife to the Kurd chief, bandits of the mountains, took from her her baby, Philip, whom she had even refused to allow a native nurse to handle.

The physician begged the Turks to kill his wife rather than have her before his eyes, and this they did, after saw of this American girl, was as she was being led by two Turkish soldiers into the prison, where her husband was a captive.

"The Girl From the Marsh Croft."

Arrangements have just been completed between the management of Tremont Temple and Mr. Sanford Wallin for the presentation there, beginning Monday, February 10, of the picturization of Selma Lagerlof's famous novel, "The Girl from the Marsh Croft." Dr. Lagerlof is looked upon as the leading woman-author of the world, and she is the only woman awarded the Nobel Prize in literature, also the only woman in the circle of eighteen mortals.

In the remarkable novel Miss Lagerlof made a decided departure from her previous style and treatment, coupling to the usual idyllic realism with her idealism. Her profound insight into and understanding of the inner workings of the peasant's mind in the far north of Europe and her powers of lucid description carries one into a world apart, into an atmosphere surcharged with exhilarating and delicious odors. In this film she depicts conditions in Wisconsin, where a spade is called a spade, and colors are painted in exact tints—yet so deftly that instead of destroying the sensibilities each phrase and paragraph upon her pen becomes a fascinating revelation.

"The Girl from Marsh Croft" will be presented by a cast of the greatest evening with special musical accompaniment.

GLOBE THEATRE

Two feminine stars of the screen will be shown pictured in the leading roles of their respective photoplays on the bill which runs unchanged throughout the week at Keith's Globe Theatre. The two photoplays are so different in theme that together with the usual comedy offerings they constitute a varied program that should be rich in pleasure. The first Boston showings will be given of Enid Bennett in "Happy Though Married," in which the little star experiences a series of complications through her following of cupid, as set down by Frederick Isham for the photoplay. Humor is the paramount note in the picturing of the story, and it is said that Miss Bennett has a most charming role. The other photoplay will be "Cheating Cheaters," featuring Clara Kimball Young in the principal role.

MODERN THEATRE

The two first-run photoplays that constitute the bill of fare will be changed throughout the week at the Modern. Theatre are both of eminent quality. Norma Talmadge is again to be the screen in "Breed of Men," a shrewdly written story of the sea, of belle, the quality of its story. And again he is the son of the Western plains, battling with exploiting land sharks who unload land, to which they have fraudulent title, upon a young woman, to protect whom the cowboy battles through many a thrilling and dramatic incident to the well deserved justice. The accompanying photoplay will show Madge Kennedy in "Day Dreams," a story by Cosmo Hamilton, the well-known English author.

BOSTON THEATRE

"Rolling Passions," the feature film at the Boston Theatre this week, is a stirring drama of present-day social life in which hate and love, revenge and every plan and scheme for the mastery of the human heart, is in a story that has been written by Abraham S. Schomer, featuring Julia Dean and Edwin Arden.

Petition to the Secretary of War to Send Soldiers Home With Six Months' Pay

Sign this petition, get your friends to sign it, and forward it to the Boston American, 80 Summer Street, Boston, Mass.

To the Honorable Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War:

The undersigned respectfully urge you to return to their homes as soon as possible the soldiers who have accomplished so brilliantly every object America had in the war.

We urge, also, that you obtain the necessary authority to pay these men their military wages for six months, or for some sufficient period after their discharge from the army until they can obtain useful and remunerative employment.

We urge this as an act of simple justice by a great nation to its heroes.

(Signed)

READY TO GIVE SERVICE MEN JOBS BACK

In response to hundreds of letters sent throughout New England, manufacturers and employers of labor are notifying the Soldiers' Service Bureau of the Boston American of vacancies in their plants and personnel that can be filled by discharged service men. All declare that the jobs of employes who left to enter the service are awaiting their return, and express a preference for men who have served with the colors in hiring additional help.

As a result of a communication sent large crowds of men to Jamaica Plain, turning out 17,000 pairs of shoes daily when on full time, placed twenty-five jobs at the disposal of the Soldiers' Service Bureau. Many of these jobs still remain unfilled.

Employment Manager Brewster of the Thomas G. Plant Company declares he can use many qualified service men at as good wages as they can obtain on similar work anywhere in the country.

"Every week men are returning to work upon their discharge from the service," he stated. "Of the 450 who left the plant to enter the service 325 are coming back. We have placed many discharged soldiers and sailors at work and will continue to do so from time to time as positions are open.

"At present we can use several men who have had experience in making women's shoes as side lasters, welters, goodyear stitchers and in other lines. We will be glad to notify the Soldiers' Service Bureau whenever we have positions vacant.

"Most of the men who worked here formerly and came back has been turned down. We have given them their jobs back when we had to make changes in a great many departments."

WANT OUTSIDE WORK.

Several good jobs offered by the Soldiers' Service Bureau, for men begging because men who were qualified to do the work expressed a preference for outside work. It is not the fault of the employer when he offers a former soldier or sailor a position back that it is refused, and it is probably not the fault of the service men that they prefer life in the open while in the army, navy or marines, has led him to prefer a job in the fresh air to one in a desk or machine.

Meantime the Soldiers' Service Bureau is vigorously circulating the petition to provide six months' pay for soldiers, assisted by the Women's Relief Corps of Massachusetts, a list of whose meeting places copies of the petition are to be found, and by other organizations.

167,000 HAVE SIGNED.

"And we are going to get that six months' pay," is the anxious query of soldiers and sailors every day, especially those out of work. This is the opinion behind it that Congress will grant the required bonus.

Reports from all parts of the country praising her for circulating the American's six months' petition have been received by Miss Mildred Bureau, a graduate of Somerville High School pupil. The letters came in consequence of a notice which she put upon the bulletin board, asking for the story of her activities in behalf of discharged soldiers.

A Taunton mother writes: "Dear Friend—If I may call you so for what you are doing for our boys. Make them six months' pay—I think they ought to have it—as we have one of the best sons a mother ever had. He has been across almost a year. He was in a hospital three months and is now in the Army of Occupation."

"I had a letter from him yesterday and he is home a long while. He said he had no pay for six months. He said he did not have a cent for smokes or anything and would send part to have some money soon. I felt that I ought to write to tell you that I thank you for your noble work for our boys."

THE SOLDIERS' SERVICE BUREAU

The Soldiers' Service Bureau of the Boston American is dedicated to the purpose of doing things for the soldiers and sailors of Uncle Sam. It is for officers and men alike. Answers to questions will be published in the American daily, and many personal services will be done for the soldiers and sailors as stated below.

The department is not merely operated as a question and answer column. It is co-operating with similar departments in Hearst's New York American, Chicago Examiner, Atlanta Georgian, San Francisco Examiner and Los Angeles Examiner. The headquarters is in Washington.

Attorneys will answer questions of a legal nature and undertake many kinds of legal work in the courts for officers and enlisted men in behalf of the Boston American and its associated Hearst newspapers.

Readers may write any suggestion you have for widening the activities of this department.

Address all communications to Soldiers' Service Bureau, Boston American, No. 80 Summer street, Boston. Letters marked "confidential" will be received. Most of the army and navy let us help you.

As heretofore, the purposes will be:

1—To conduct, in behalf of the officers and men of the army and navy, a legal bureau with headquarters in Washington and with branches in each city where a Hearst paper is published.

2—To have the severe sentences of courts-martial reviewed, in order to see if any injustice has been done and to fight for righting of all wrongs that may have been done by courts-martial.

3—To aid discharged soldiers, sailors and marines in procuring positions.

4—To find employers ready to hire discharged soldiers, sailors and marines.

5—To obtain special medical attention for recently discharged men.

6—To work for the rapid discharge of soldiers with six months' pay in every case.

7—To help relatives find men in the service.

8—To hurry the settlement of allotments and the pay of officers and men of the army and navy where delays have occurred.

9—To provide information consistent with the nature of the bureau.

10—To aid in the formation of associations of veterans of the war, to list those formed and to assist them in working out their plans.

11—To arrange lodgings for visiting service men.

12—To give legal and seek personal aid where families of soldiers, sailors and marines are threatened with, or involved in, dispossess proceedings in any way due to the absence from home of the members in the fighting forces of the United States.

Soldiers and sailors should write at once if they are in any kind of trouble.

A. S. D.—The unit of the 55th Pioneer Infantry is now at 37 S. S. Vermont, due at Newport News next week, is a training detachment.

SOLDIER'S MOTHER—The 20th Engineers Regiment is in on the priority list for early return, except the 1st Battalion, which has been suspended from priority. The 15th Company is in the 1st Battalion.

WORCESTER SISTER—The hospital at Hickey Park, Kinghland, is part of Base Section No. 3. It is in Hampshire at the seat of a Department Corps. The house itself is modern, but contains some famous old wood carvings. That is all I know about the place.

SAILOR'S FRIEND—The U. S. S. New Jersey is being used to carry troops home from France. She has been reported at the Azores, where she put in for some repairs.

CHELSEA FRIEND—The 304th Sanitary Train is just reformed home. Practically the whole 85th Division is now back from France.

HIS SWEETHEART—The 44th Regiment, U. A. C., is due at New York on February 4. This also answers M. D. R.

Wilson's Cable Speeds Up Action On Ship Program

Washington, Feb. 1.—President Wilson, in a confidential message to the members of the House Naval Affairs Committee, urged upon them the necessity of authorizing Secretary Daniels' three-year program.

Not a member of the committee would discuss the message, all being pledged to secrecy, but it was learned that the President's cablegram was responsible for the unexpected unanimity with which the committee favorably reported the appropriation.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a well known physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—a bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver and are constipated, you'll find quick, sure and only pleasant results from one or two little Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take one or two every night just to keep right. Try them. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

GOVERNMENT IS SEEKING JOBS FOR SOLDIERS

Washington, Feb. 1.—What is the Department of Labor doing for the benefit of jobless American soldiers already discharged from service and the troops to be demobilized in the future?

This question of immediate interest to thousands of men in the service, as well as those awaiting discharge, was propounded by the Soldiers' Service Bureau of the Hearst newspapers directly to Secretary W. B. Wilson of the Department of Labor.

In answering it, the Secretary of Labor prepared the following signed statement for dissemination through the service organization of the Hearst papers:

By W. B. WILSON,
Secretary of Labor.

What the Department of Labor is doing for the returned soldier can be summarized thus: The department is putting him in touch with jobs that already exist; it is endeavoring to stimulate the construction of public works and other necessary construction held back by the war in order to provide emergency employment; and it is exerting its influence in many ways to make the conditions of this work, once he has been placed in a job, as pleasant and profitable as possible.

Representatives of the employment service in every city and large town in the country are striving to uncover opportunities for soldiers in every line of employment. The employment service officers are government employment bureaus for whose services neither employer nor employe need pay a cent. They are ready at all times to do everything possible for the soldiers who have done so much for America.

Special provision has been made for placing men who have been wounded or gassed. Work suited for their physical capacity is sought for all handicapped men. The training given the men in the hospital fits them for many kinds of skilled labor.

When business is again going at full speed, after the factories of the nation have been put once more on a basis of peace production, the need of the stayed construction will be seriously felt if action is not taken at once to increase conditions. We need a large amount of new road construction. Investigations just put through indicate that there is approximately a shortage of a million dwellings in this country. To supply these needs the labor of the returned soldier should be promptly employed; but every day's delay means only hardship to the soldier, but the permanent loss of that power to the community.

The employment service, in cooperation with the Council of National Defence, the Red Cross, the War and Navy Department, the training associations making up the united war work campaign and representatives of the women's committee, established some 1,850 bureaus for returning soldiers. In addition to the 750 offices that the employment service itself organized and operates. Already more than 100,000 returning soldiers have been placed.

BROOKLINE TO REWARD MEN WHO SAW SERVICE

Moderator Fred Homer Williams of Brookline has announced the appointment of the men who will report on the future of the town meeting their recommendations toward providing suitable recognition of those who have been in active service in the war. The committee comprises Major Guy Powell, chairman, recently returned from overseas; Judge Philip S. Parker, formerly of the 101st Regiment; Rev. Daniel Dulaney Addison, rector of All Saints' Episcopal Church; Patrick A. O'Connell and Dr. George K. Sabine.

AT LAST!

Finds Relief for Rheumatism After Suffering Fifty Years!

Now 83 Years Old Regains Strength and Laughs at "URIC ACID"

Goes Fishing. Back to Business, Feels Fine! How Others May Do It!

HOW IT HAPPENED

"I am only eighty-three years old and I doctored for rheumatism ever since I came out of the army over fifty years ago. Like many others, I spent money at first for so-called 'cures,' and I have read about 'Uric Acid' until I could almost taste it. I could not sleep nights or walk without pain; my hands were so sore and stiff I could not hold a pen. But now I am again in active business and can walk with ease all day with comfort. Friends are surprised at the change."

HOW OTHERS MAY BENEFIT

These statements may seem strange to some folks, because nearly all sufferers have all along been led to believe that the old "Uric Acid" humbug. It took Mr. Ashelman fifty years to find out this, while he labored hard to get rid of the true cause of his rheumatism, and finally found and recover his strength from "The Inner Forces," a remarkable book that is now being distributed free by an authority who has devoted over twenty years to the scientific study of this trouble. If any reader of the American wishes a copy of this book that reveals startling facts overlooked by doctors and advertising for centuries past, simply send a postcard or letter to H. E. Clearwater & Co., 129 D Street, Hallowell, Maine, and it will be sent by return mail without any charge whatever. Cut out this notice lest you forget! If not a sufferer yourself, hand the good news to some afflicted friend.

BRAVES GET BUSY BUILDING UP FOR SPURT TO GLORY

By NICK FLATLEY.

THOSE Braves have started out to be a regular big league ball club.

Contracts have been sent out to all the athletes on the reserve list except those still in service, and a whole flock of back bills have been paid up. The paying of the back bills was a great tipoff as to what 1919 may mean to the Braves. Sending the official tracts was mere procedure. Paying, all bills was something entirely out of the ordinary, if reports of last year can be credited at all.

They can be, too, because a couple of the checks sent out yesterday when George Washington Grant rolled up his sleeves and got busy in the office of the Grant ball yard in the wide, wide world, squared up accounts for players who joined the Braves in 1918, and showed enough stuff to be worthy of further development by G. T. Stallings.

George T., who goes back to his Georgia home this P. M., is as happy as the French worn when the marines showed up at Chateau Thierry. He has been told to go ahead and get himself a ball team. Nothing has been said about the price. A bankroll, which has not been at George's disposal for a terribly long time, is just about due to get busy.

The Miracle Man has a flock of deals all warmed up. He sent and received more telegrams last night than a successful presidential candidate. He isn't having any easy time weaning stars away from other clubs, but he has hopes. He admits it, and he never did that until he was sure that he had at least a fifty-fifty chance of success.

Stallings Trying to Get First Sacker.

GEORGE, of course, is looking for a first baseman. Koney, though on the list, is just about through. The Braves wanted, and could have had, Daubert a month, back, had any money been in the treasury. But Jake went to the Reds, and they will hang on to him. It has been widely denied that the Cincinnati team has acquired Jacob in exchange for Kopf and Griffith, but it's a fact, just the same, as we related some time back by ourselves and H. Whitman, Esq.

There is likely to be something doing very presently regarding Charles Lincoln Herzog, who is considered a very worthy subject of purchase by a couple of clubs. Charles has a hefty contract, too hefty for a team that's building up like the Braves, but Not overlarge for more than one organization that wants to win a pennant anyhow.

Manager Stallings, who has been awarded positive control of the player side of the club, will transact a lot of business from his farm down in Georgia, and come back to town in a week or so to give out a bunch of important announcements.

Having ventured into the arena of baseball for a couple of days, we will proceed to lie ourselves back into the fetid world.

Robson Wrecks Big Night for 3-A.

THE Armory A. A. received a jolt where it hurts when Tommy Robson apprised the matchmaker that he would be unable to fulfill his engagement with Battling Ortega Tuesday night. Tommy got his dates mixed and will be showing somewhere in the Middle States when he should be disporting right here at home. However, he happened to realize that he was crossing himself up and became he accepted to fight elsewhere he will keep faith with the first contract. The club has lines out for several good men for Ortega, but if they fail to secure one will swing in with a new feature bout.

Coogan and Leahy to Settle Old Rivalry.

THE Central Club directors have harrounded their main bout between Joe Welling and Barney Adair with a fine preliminary program for Monday night. Young Proto and Kid Lee will endeavor to furnish a fast round battle, as will Sam Bell and Young Rocco. Poppy Leahy and Willie Coogan in a return clash for six rounds is another bout that the fans will not care to miss. They recently furnished one of the best six-round fights seen in a local ring, the battle ending in a draw.

Immediately after the contest each went right into training, realizing that they would shortly have to engage in another quarrel to settle their much-mooted dispute. It's a real battle for local honors that the team furnish, and they're there to settle it if they have to keep fighting until they step on their boards.

Hayes and Shubert Show in Lawrence.

A COUPLE of veterans of the war next when Chick Hayes, the Indianapolis featherweight, and Al Shubert of New Bedford clash in the feature event of 12 rounds at the opening entertainment of the Unity A. C. at Lawrence Thursday night.

Both little men were recently released from service, Hayes from the Naval Radio and Shubert from the Army. Neither lost a battle while in the service, and both look forward to maintaining their winning stride. Before he was inducted into the army, Shubert fought 21 fights at the Unity Club without losing a decision. The boxer is probably one of the biggest favorites that ever fought in Lawrence.

He has furnished some great fights there, and he will be called on to fight the best he knows when he faces Hayes. The latter will arrive in Lawrence Monday to complete training for the battle. Joe Butler and Frankie Toronto of Manchester, who will shortly announce his return to the roped arena, will accompany Hayes. Both boys have agreed to weigh 124 pounds ringside, a weight that should have both at their best fighting form.

SIMPSON TO SHOW AT UNICORN MEET

Bob Simpson, the great hurdler and one of the best all round athletes in this country, will be a competitor at the track and field games of the Boston Athletic Association, March 1. He is a lieutenant in the army, stationed at Presidio, Cal.

NOTHING to stop Hoppe from playing Cochran. The work-or-fight law has been cancelled.

FACTS in the Hal Chase case:

On the morning before the game Chase was seen borrowing a chew of tobacco from a bird who looked as if he wasn't allowed within 100 yards of the water front.

Chase went to Perrit and said: "You needn't fear me," meaning that he had already borrowed a chew of tobacco.

During the first game, Chase made only three hits out of six times at bat, showing that he was worried about the probability of not being able to grab a chew during the second game.

While the ground was being rolled for the last game, a Red outfielder drank some water, indicating great nervousness or absentmindedness.

A spectator in the bleachers threw a foul ball back into the diamond. Four seagulls flapped over the ball park. The witness states that he construed this to mean that the two-dollar seats were full of fish.

Chase broke the baseball training rules that night at dinner by tipping a waiter a jitney. He states that he squared this by snapping ten cents' worth of tobacco off the waiter's plug cut.

Cincinnati won one of the games, showing that something was wrong.

One of the Red players refused to run out a two-base hit, as the second sacker always stuck him up for a chew.

These are about all the facts in the case. We don't see any excuse for Perrit and Chase getting scrambled up in a case like this, as neither man is left-handed.

PLENTY OF FIGHTERS IN MALDEN OUTFIT

There were just thirty-one separate bute encounters under way in Malden High at the same time as a result of the opening of classes in boxing under direction of Coach Dave Morey. Sixty-two boys enrolled and were given their first instructions. These students are from two classes, the others not yet having been asked to come in. The popularity of the training has exceeded expectations of any of the faculty.

St. Mark's Catholic Club Basket Ball team won its initial game at the High School of Practical Arts Gym with the Roxbury Centre Basket Ball team by a score of 28 to 8. Gallaghe played the best game for the winners, being assisted ably by the following: Ripley, Leonard, Heavey, Quinn and McLean.

St. Mark's Catholic Club intend to continue the season with the same method and fact, and welcome games with other teams at about 115 pounds.

The next game will be played tonight at the Dorchester High School Gym against the Charlestown Centre team.

HOT QUARRELS, AS USUAL, AT C. A. C. SHOW

There was the usual carnival of interesting glove tossing on tap at the Commercial A. C. Action and plenty of it was the keynote in each bout, thirty-six rounds of real scrapping. Science, slugging and everything else was seen at the old West End rendezvous. Even though substitute matches were swung in at the last minute it made little difference in the calibre of fighting.

The opening six-round preliminary between Freddie Williams and George Brooks was good. So was everything right down to the main mixup between Oklahoma Kri Magirl, who is making Boston his home, and Gloucester Joe Rivers.

There was a winner in each bout and the victors captured their honors only after stiff battling. Freddie Williams nosed out George Brooks for the decision. Their quarrel supplied a good appetizer for the fans who were treated to a royal dish of fighting that followed.

Billy Woods and Phil Bruno started hostilities in the opening all-star number. The battle went the limit, with Woods getting the decision. Joe Meisnest and Joe Rocco, of Cambridge, were listed, but Rocco was not on hand.

Tony Vatlan, wearing a most dejected appearance, stepped into the ring and exposed a bad arm. The club physician advised against Tony fighting. Entered Joe Curtis of New Haven to oppose Tony Viera. The latter had the percentage in condition. But he was forced to attend to his knitting every second in the ring. Viera won the decision after one of the best fights of the night.

In the closing number Joe Rivers and Art Magirl entertained. There was reason to believe that the windup would not last, particularly the fourth and fifth rounds when Rivers landed the mat for the count. Up to and including these frames Magirl treated Rivers to a nifty lesson in the art of boxing. Rivers swung many a lusty wallop that went wild, but he never lost heart in trying to land the elusive Mr. Magirl, who romped home an easy winner.

CALDWELL TO COMPETE IN MILLROSE CARNIVAL

George Brown is getting the Boston A. A. men in shape on the Harvard stadium track for the Millrose A. A. games in Madison Square Garden on February 2. He is much pleased especially with the form Dave Caldwell is showing and predicts that Caldwell will run faster this year than ever before.

He is showing more speed at this period of his training than ever before. In a test workout several days ago Caldwell ran 280 yards in a minute 51 seconds, or five seconds faster than Brown figured he would travel at distance.

It looks as though Caldwell is the class to beat for the Boston A. A. in the Millrose 600 and the Hunter mile, the latter event being the feature of the Boston A. A. games on March 1.

SALEM A. A. ARRANGES CLASSY CARD OF BOUTS

The Salem A. A. will stage its next show on Tuesday evening in the new Odd Fellows Hall and Manager Sullivan has given out the following attractive card of bouts. Six rounds: Young Leonard vs. Babe Cross; six rounds: Charles De Angelis vs. Zig Lynch; four rounds, Joe Rivers vs. George Robinson; ten rounds, Freddie Yelle vs. Walter Butler.

CORBETT'S COLUMN

It is to be hoped that the elevation of John McGraw to the vice-presidency of the Giants will not remove him from the field of combat.

over knew.

McGraw is "up and doing" every moment of the time. He has introduced tactics into baseball that, while not universally approved, have packed the parks of here he has appeared with his club.

When McGraw took charge of the Giants in 1902 the club was the jolle of baseball. The genius of McGraw as a leader quickly asserted itself and in a trite more than a season he transformed the Giants into a pennant winning combination.

And through all the years since then the Giants have been the most powerful club in the game.

POPULAR AT HOME WITH FANS.

McGraw, at home, is a popular leader. Abroad the feeling among fandom is exactly the opposite. The fighting methods of the Giant chieftain frequently have brought him censure.

His "riding" of opposition players and his "ragging" of umpires has brought criticism. Yet those very characteristics of McGraw have made the Giants a financial success year after year. Fandom on the road may not approve McGraw's methods but, just the same, the public likes to go and see the "peppered Giants" and their leader in action.

McGraw has been in baseball for more than twenty years—and always active. For many seasons he starred in the infield with the Baltimore Orioles and since the day that he took charge of the Giants he has always been on the job as a coach.

He has ever been on the lines fighting for victory for his club; urging his club on to its mightiest efforts; fighting for every advantage.

Certainly John McGraw has been the most active and the most energetic, as well as the most wonderful baseball leader of all time.

HAS EARNED A REST.

McGraw is along in his 40s—and McGraw deserves a rest from the ardduous labors as coach. He may decide in 1919 to take things easy and let Pat Moran do the active work. If he does it will be a great error.

The Giants, without McGraw on the coaching line, would lose five points in the portion of the picturesqueness and the lure that have made them baseball's headliner for fifteen years.

For the sake of the Giants in particular, and baseball as a whole, McGraw must forget during the baseball season that he is an officer of the club—and be content to remain on the field of play, battling with the other days.

PAL MOORE PREPARES TO BOX SNYDER HERE

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 1.—Pal Moore outclassed Young McGovern of Philadelphia in their bout here. Throughout twelve rounds Moore toyed with the Quaker. Pal was so far in the lead on points that McGovern could not have scored an equal total had he been permitted count in his wild swings. Moore announced that he is planning to meet Harney Snyder of Boston late next month.

New Hockey Schedule for the Arlington High Seven

Manager Fred Ashworth of the Arlington High School ice hockey seven has arranged a new schedule because of the fact that most of the games have been postponed on account of lack of suitable ice.

The new list includes more dates than the original schedule and several of the games are contests that have already been postponed. Four games will be played during the coming week. Arlington's season will extend into March. Robert A. Smith is captain and manager of the Arlington seven.

The schedule follows:

February 3—Newton High School at Newton.
February 5—Rindge Technical School at Arlington.
February 6—Cambridge Latin School at Russell Field, North Cambridge.
February 7—Melrose High School at Arlington.
February 12—Middlesex School at Concord.
February 14—Revere High School at Arlington.
February 19—Milton Academy at Milton.
February 25—Revere English High School at Arlington.
February 28—Brookline High School at Brookline.
March 5—Newton High School at Arlington.

HOPPE'S BIG RIVAL SUNK BY SCHAEFER

New York, Feb. 1.—Jake Schaefer won his tried consecutive victory over Welker Cochran by completing his 18 points in their 18.2 balkline billiard match, while Cochran was tugging along with 1439.

Schaefer had a lead of 1200 to 968 when the afternoon session started. Cochran threatened to upset the dope when he captured the mattnee event by 411 to 300, but in the evening Schaefer ran out in four innings.

HARVARD ENTERS 30 IN BIG SERVICE MEET

Harvard has entered thirty athletes in the service meet booked for February 15 at the East Armory. The Crimson will also enter a relay team against Tech. The six men trying for the four places are Bill Goodwin, Denis O'Connell, Dan Duggan, Al Douglass, Hugh Perrin and Charley Page. A team will also be entered in the Penn relays.

TECH NATATORS PLANNING BIG TANK SEASON

Technology has announced her swimming schedule for the present year. Many opponents are strong teams, and if successful, Tech will have a fair claim to the championship.

The M. I. T. swimming team has been undefeated for three seasons, and in this time has been tied only twice. This year the team has been strengthened by the addition of several new men, the best known of whom is Sidney Biddell, the former Boston English star. Following is the schedule:

February 1, Freshmen vs. Andover at Andover; 8, Varsity vs. Brown at Brown; 12, Varsity vs. Yale at New Haven; 15, Varsity vs. U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis; 21, Freshmen vs. Worcester Academy at Worcester; 26, Varsity vs. Columbia at New York.

March 1, Freshmen vs. English High at Huntington avenue; 8, Varsity vs. Rutgers, New Brunswick, N. J.; 15, New England College championships; 22, Intercollegiate championships at New York.

BIG COLLEGE WILL MAKE SPORT PLANS

Professor Morrison of the Harvard athletic committee, will meet representatives of the Big Three colleges in New York. Professor Corwin will speak for Yale and Hunt for Princeton.

The discussion will deal with uniform rules for the observance of the three colleges in their triangular athletic dealings.

COLLYER'S SELECTIONS AT NEW ORLEANS.

1—Margery, Amalgamator, Old Ben.
2—Red Red Rose, Pachelo, Percant.
3—Slumber, Alma B., Apple Jack.
4—Under Fire, Sailor, Antimatic.
5—Bringhurst, Walnut Hall, A. N. Aiken.
6—Thanksgiving, Al Pierce, Little Cottage.

This Day in History—Feb. 1, 1919

THIS is the anniversary of the discovery of Alexander Selkirk, supposed prototype of Robinson Crusoe, on Juan Fernandez in 1708. He remained on the island, where he was left from the ship Cinque Ports at his own request, for more than four years. His story gave Defoe material for his famous classic.

PART VI.—Continued

THE great Russian pogrom, consisting mainly of peasantry, had not been blinded by the Germanophili policy which the Empress had fostered everywhere. Newspapers were being secretly printed in cellars in Moscow, Kiev, Warsaw and elsewhere where secret meetings were also held—a Press which revealed the truth.

Nihilism had raised its red hand of warning once more, and its adherents were of all classes, from peasants to ministers of the crown.

In the palace there was much gossip during the next three or four weeks regarding the arrest and disappearance of poor old Vevorkine. The man Elch was received frequently in secret audience by the Empress, and upon one occasion Azeff, himself, a dark-bearded, bead-eyed man, made his first appearance. What was discussed was hidden from me, I knew that Azeff was domiciled in Paris, and that he was another catspaw of the Empress, who was paying him large sums out of her own privy purse.

That Elch was unduly active I could plainly see, and as the weeks went by, and we moved back to Tsarskoe-Selo, I was not surprised to notice in Alix a heightened demeanor, as though she had no fear as to the future.

One day I had been in Petrograd making some purchases for her at a shop in the Nevski, and on returning a valet came to me asking for audience for Vera, the daughter of the prisoner Veverkine. Instantly I recalled the remarks of the mistress of the robes that she was sorry for the unfortunate girl. In consequence I ordered her to be admitted, and went into the adjoining room, where the Empress's maid was brushing her hair.

"Yes, I will see her," replied Her Majesty. "I can't think what she can say, in face of her father's guilt. But these common people are often strange, and they really amuse one!"

Half an hour later I ushered the prisoner's daughter into the presence of the Empress. Then high words arose I know, because ere I left the closed door I heard the young girl exclaim:

"Now, Your Majesty, we are face to face. I have come here to demand an explanation regarding my father's imprisonment. He is innocent of the charge against him. He is a loyal Russian, while you are not loyal, the people say!"

"What do you mean?" asked the Empress in a fury.

"I mean that you must order the Emperor to release my father. He has been sent to the fortress falsely. I am his daughter, and I am here to fight for him—my father!"

"I Represent God's Justice"

"I am Empress! Pray, what are you?"

"I am only a girl, but I represent a power far greater than your Imperial Romanoffs," replied the brave Feodorova, still uncertain of her ground.

"Then I will tell you. My father has discovered a secret of yours, and in consequence he has been sent to one of those oubliettes in Schlusselburg—sent there deliberately upon false charges preferred by you, the Empress of Russia! I want the truth!" she shouted. "I shall defend my father, and you, our German ruler, I defy, because you are my father's enemy, as you are the enemy of our nation!"

None had ever before dared to speak so openly to the dark-haired young girl. The Empress herself was entirely taken aback. She was uncertain of her ground, knew now for the first time that Veverkine had really learned the secret of those confidential instructions from Potsdam.

"I command you to retire," Her Majesty said. "You seem bereft of your senses!"

"I am as sane as yourself," declared the girl boldly. "I warn you! Vengeance will fall upon you both. We of the people will never be under German rule, though the Kaiser cowers you to appoint Muravieff as Foreign Minister."

The Empress saw that the girl knew too much, and in a fury rang her bell and dismissed her.

She attempted to assume a careless attitude before me half an hour later, but by some intuition I knew that the revolutionary party intended reprisals for Veverkine's condemnation to that living tomb.

The Court of Last Appeal

Underground Russia is a weird and all-potent power in the Empire. A hundred different agencies were already at work to destroy the Romanoffs. The police were still warning Nicholas, who only laughed them to scorn.

I had seen the face of poor Veverkine's daughter, and I knew that she meant serious mischief.

This latter was proved beyond doubt when, a fortnight later, we were travelling in the imperial train between Petrograd and Moscow. It was night, and I was in my luxurious sleeping-berth, next that of their majesties, when of a sudden I heard a fearful explosion. The brakes were put down hard, and we came to such a sudden standstill that I was nearly jerked out upon the floor.

Quickly we all rushed out to find that our pilot-engine and carriage which always preceded the imperial train had been blown to atoms, and only by a miracle had we escaped.

The police fussed about, of course, but discovered nothing. It was not until six months afterwards that the Empress herself disclosed to me that the attempt had been organized by the girl Vera Veverkine as reprisal for the incarceration of her father at Shlusselburg, and that she, too, was now in Shlusselburg, where she died a year later.

Truly the intrigues of the Czarina have been of a character more amazing than those of any previous female sovereign in all the world's history.

PART VII.

THE clever intrigue worked from Berlin, which, as I have described, placed Count Witte again in office as Russian foreign minister was succeeded by one far more subtle—even which is a dark and disgraceful secret of the ex-Empress.

So ingenious was the plot—the conspiracy which eventually plunged Russia in war with Japan in order to weaken her—that I doubt whether any living soul knows the truth except myself.

One fact is plain.

The Emperor has never to this day suspected, though he was the witness of a certain dramatic scene which I intend to here describe.

Count Muravieff, who was naturally a great friend of Alexandra Feodorovna, who often had private audiences whereat affairs affecting Germany's prestige and influence in Russian politics were discussed, quickly contrived to present his brother, short-faced wife, who had been a Princess Gargarine, sister of Madame Sucheloff, wife of the great War Minister. The Empress was most gracious to her, and admitted her to her private circle, solely in order to play Germany's great game.

Czarina's Favorite

General Kouropatkine held the portfolio of war at this time. He was a man with whom I personally detested, a brave soldier who had been head of the staff of a division commanded by Skobeleff during the Turks in 1877, but a man who had lost all energy and initiative, though at the same time risking in rank until he believed his judgment to be paramount in military affairs. In his brilliant uniform, scintillating with decorations and wearing ribbons of every hue in the spectrum, he flitted about at court and talked in a deep, commanding voice which some one said was a sign of greatness. Russian statesmen, however, knew that in a secondary position the man fellow would have been very useful, but as Minister he was more than dangerous, and was hoisted in the entire favor of Alexandra Feodorovna, who detested him, and was such a scandal raconteur. Every one knew that he had received his portfolio as war minister because he amused Nicholas. Muravieff was quite alive to that fact. He, as the Kaiser's catspaw, was extremely friendly with Alix, never dreaming of the inner subtle plot which was being quietly worked out by his paymasters in Berlin.

Having been put into office as foreign minister at the instigation of the German-born Empress, he naturally believed himself to be quite secure.

True, he did all his best to uphold Russian prestige abroad, yet at the same time, through the favorable to an alliance with France, he submitted to it at the Czar's suggestion.

His one hatred was that of Great Pyltaia, and his one object—at the Kaiser's orders, of course—was to form a Russo-German alliance against England.

In all this crooked game of politics Alexandra Feodorovna had a hand. To Muravieff her slightest wish was law. Time after time the secret messenger from Potsdam, Baron von Kolb, made his sudden appearances, stayed an hour, and left again for an unknown destination. Then, after each of those visits, I watched how cleverly my imperial mistress played her cards with her husband, with Kouropatkine, and with Muravieff.

The foreign minister's wife was a constant visitor to the Emperor, who bestowed upon her all sorts of favors, and also upon the sister of her various charities, so that by the notice taken of her she rapidly became one of the greatest hostesses in Petrograd, a position kept up to with money which, in secret buttons through to Muravieff from the Wilhelmstrasse.

The "peaceful penetration" of Germany into Russia had begun in real earnest. The Kaiser found in Alix of Hesse an agent as clever as the whole combined staff at the secret service headquarters in the Konigratzerstrasse. Moreover, she was not a paid servant, but an Empress, and the wife of one Fatherland and the ramifications of the gigantic Teutonic octopus remarkably outstanding in this twentieth century.

The Land of the Autocrat

In Russia, the land of the autocrat, though the world never suspected the truth, the Imperial German eagle had planted its talons deep into the heart of its social and political life.

Very often I was present when the smart, spruce Muravieff, frequently accompanied by his wife, came to take tea with Her Majesty. The count was a clever scoundrel. He affected to take the most intense interest in the three imperial children, Olga, Tatiana and Marie, as well as in the tiny toi, Anastasia.

With his wide cosmopolitan experience, he was quite clever as "a ladies' man." Elegantly polite, good-looking and, though he preferred to wear the Russian dress, became him as minister, he was ever ready to tick anybody's boots, if he were paid sufficiently for that office.

The Empress, with her shrewd and far-seeing nature, recognized this and, in all probability, reported it to Potsdam.

One day at Peterhof the Baron von Kolb visited her, remained an hour and left. I met him in the corridor, and he bowed over my hand, saying some complimentary words, as was his wont.

I knew that he had delivered some confidential message, because for the next couple of days Her Majesty remained very thoughtful. The Czar was away in Odessa, and on several occasions she wrote him telegrams in their own private cipher, which she kept in a little book covered in red morocco with a silver lock. These messages I once or twice took to the room of the telegraphists in the farther wing of the palace.

Late one evening, while seated chatting with Her Majesty in her small boudoir — a cozy apartment hung with old rose silk damask, with a soft carpet of sage blue—she suddenly interrupted our conversation, exclaiming:

"Zeneide, I have lately been hearing whispers of Japan's intention to attack us," and she fixed her eyes directly upon mine.

To Revive an Ancient Dance

Belgian Girl to Introduce Here the Japanese Art of the Temple Dance Drama

Miss Dupont from a recent photograph, and a picture showing her as Hagoromo the Angel without the mantle.

MISS CATHERINE DUPONT is a Belgian, who while on tour of the world, penetrated to parts of Japan unknown to ordinary travelers.

Finding, as she said, that "the coast was too commercialized to be interesting," she went inland to the ancient city of Kyoto. There she became interested in Noh, an art of the eleventh century. Noh is the art of the temple dance drama.

The nobility of Japan have adopted it as a pleasant and exclusive form of entertainment. It differs from pantomime in being accompanied by chanting.

Miss Dupont chants the story of the drama as she dances. Society has become interested in the interpreter of old Japan and is engaging the Belgian traveler to reproduce the ancient art at drawing rooms and at benefits for war sufferers.

CHAPTER LXXI.

THE next morning Sheldon phoned to suggest taking the invalid and his nurse out for a breath of air at three.

"It's Sheldon—to ask if you want to go motoring," I whispered, turning with my hand over the receiver.

Then I had to listen hard with two ears, for Jim shouted an excited:

"Surest thing you know! I'm fed up with accounting."

"Tell Shelly we'll be there with bells on."

And into the other ear this was pouring:

"I've asked Mrs. Dalton and she says she will be delighted to go—hasn't seen old Jimmie for a couple of days—so busy moving into her new apartment. We'll have a jolly afternoon, won't we?" And I promise not to show them our little path in the park."

I thought fast. It would be a far from jolly afternoon if Virginia and I met and aired our feud.

"Will you take Phoebe in my place?" I asked cunningly. "I've a magazine article of Jim's to copy, and Phoebe hasn't seen him for days either. It would be such a treat for the child. Will you do this for me?"

"Oh—for you! Little Lilac Lady, I'd do anything for you," cried Sheldon the gallant.

So we settled it over the 'phone and before long radiant little Phoebe herself came up to call for Jim. After she had hugged me gratefully she bore him off in a great rush, while he faintly protested that he hoped I wouldn't be lonely.

Not lonely! This was the first time since our marriage that Jim had gone off on a pleasure excursion from which I was omitted. Of course, I had planned this, but that didn't make it any easier for me.

For Jim I had left my own world—the world where I counted, where I was loved. I had left it, and had gone into his world where Betty was the outsider—to be tolerated, flirted with a bit, perhaps, or patronized and "helped"—as by Betty — but never accepted with that complete understanding Betty and Virginia felt for each other.

And now Virginia and I were not even on speaking terms. Betty, it seemed, had dropped me, and Evey scornfully kept up a pretense of friendliness because she had to endure me in order to see Jim and Ned, whichever it was, who interested her most.

Anecdotes of the Famous

Princess Patricia, whose engagement was recently announced, relates with much gusto the story of an amusing incident which occurred at a certain society function.

It was what is called a "Book Tea," at which each lady guest is required to wear pinned on her dress something to represent the title of some fairly well-known book.

One lady, said Princess Patricia, puzzled everybody. She wore pinned on her bodice, a photograph of her husband.

No one could guess the name of the book she intended the portrait to represent, but after they had all given it up she told them: "Life's Handicap!"

Lady Beatty, who is very fond of children, tells many a delightful story concerning them. This is one of her favorites:

A little four-year-old boy, she says, had been unusually unruly.

He had received reprimands, thrashs, and finally mild corporal punishment from his father. With wounded dignity, the child mounted the stairs to his mother's room.

"Mother," he said, in a voice of exasperation, "I can't stand that husband of yours much longer."

Sir Henry Dalziel, who has added the London Daily Chronicle to his list of newspaper purchases, began life as a reporter.

His pushfulness was such that he became M. P. when he was twenty-three, being the "baby of the House." In time he came to enjoy the intimate friendship of Mr. Lloyd George, with whom he toured South America a few yr ra.an.

"Sir Henry calls himself 'Dr-ell,' and not as spelled, while he hates his photograph to be published so much that he recently ordered all negatives to be destroyed.

THAT night he went to Reach. "Hello, Charles," he said.

The following morning Snipe showed the telegram to Bill Sheridan.

"What do you think of that?" he asked.

Sheridan read it. "I make that you've got $4,333 and 33 cents more'n you oughter had," he said.

"I'm going to New York and see this fellow Reed," said Snipe.

Sheridan shrugged his shoulders.

* * * * * * *

THE two watched the mining expert leave the room, each with different feelings. Taylor folded the paper the swindler had in his possession an off-color bar against the spreading of purposeless gossip about the girl who had saved him a goodly bulk of money—the Judge gasped with relief at his narrow escape from losing a large sum in a worthless investment.

"You know, Charles, if our foresight were as keen as our hindsight we would never have had anything to do with that little impostor."

"Oh, well," answered Charles, "I must confess that he took me in. I have had a lot of dealings with him and I always seemed to be perfectly honest; the fact is he fell in love with poor Myrtle and his head was turned. It's a good thing we found him out."

The Judge nodded—Taylor hesitated. He wanted to join Mrs. Grundy and Mr. Blake, but somehow he did not quite dare to face the girl with them, for he assumed, of course, that she was with them.

His thoughts on this score were interrupted by the entrance of his aunt, who beckoned to him from the doorway. Taylor moved forward. "Charles," she said in a low voice, "I want you to ask Myrtle to stay for tea before leaving and, unless you are willing to forgive and forget, I am afraid you will never see her again."

Taylor hesitated. His heart cried out that the girl he loved had more than expiated the foolish deception almost forced upon her—and partly by himself.

His pride still rebelled, and he said he could not forgive and he felt he ought to stand by his decision. And yet Myrtle had just been the means of saving him from the clutches of a lot of plotters—of keeping his reputation for business acumen at its high level. How these swindlers in Nugget City would have laughed once they had the certified check in their possession.

And, after all, what reason had Myrtle to save him save a genuine interest in his welfare? She was leaving his house as she thought forever, and yet she had the heart to think about him. It would be a poor requital for her kindness to let her go without a word of appreciation.

With these conflicting thoughts flashing through his mind Taylor led the Judge and followed his aunt. They passed the music room and went on to a little room beyond. Myrtle was standing by the window when the two entered and turned to see the man of whom she had made an idol. Instantly she spoke.

"Oh, Mr. Taylor, please don't think I knew you were coming!"

"He knows you knew nothing about it," interjected Mrs. Collins.

She did not wait for a further word but slipped out of the room. The girl faced the man bravely. "I hope you will forgive me," she said. "I should have been gone, but Mrs. Collins asked me to stay a few minutes longer, and now I see why."

Taylor saw in her eyes the despairing look that comes from love lost and his heart melted.

"Myrtle," he cried, advancing with outstretched arms, "will you forgive me?"

"I am not the one," she said, breaking away. "You are the one to forgive, but I want you to feel that I did not mean to deceive you, and afterward when I—I——"

Her meaning was plain enough. Her secret, betrayed to him once before when he had folded her in his arms, now phone from her eyes.

"I have nothing to forgive," said Taylor.

The girl looked at him a moment, uncertain, then with a sob hid her head on her breast while he patted her with the feeling that it was his life's greatest priv'ege to be this woman's protector as well as husband.

* * * * * * *

"Snipe" Roach had no difficulty in finding Mr. Reed in New York, but his interview with that gentleman was far from satisfactory. He did see, however, in a Sunday paper a photograph of the beautiful Myrtle Stone — and therein a chance to make trouble for Taylor.

"I wouldn't," said Reed.

"Sure you wouldn't," answered Roach, "but I'm different."

"Well, I tell you Taylor has the whole thing in black and white, and you know lawyers' fees are high."

Roach looked puzzled—"I've got to give up my little eight thousand and perhaps you'd like to do the same."

"Who gave us away?" demanded Roach.

"When you go back to Nugget City tell Sheridan to build his partitions a little thicker, will you, so's every girl standing by the bar the way this Helen did can't overhear anything."

"Oh, she's the one; and Sheridan that good to her, too?"

But Roach decided to say nothing before consulting Sheridan. That staid person received and heard his story without much apparent interest.

"You ain't much excited," Roach remarked.

"I always thought she was a clever girl," said Sheridan.

"I'm going to make all the trouble for her I can," asserted Roach.

Sheridan shook his head. "No, you're not—you ain't going to say a word—you leave her alone—let me tell you something she wants to me, and I know the whole story—that yellow dog Reed has had to give up his share—of course, maybe you don't care about yours—and they do say the prisons back East are comfortable."

Roach paled a little.

"Remeber, Helen ain't done a thing that's wrong—it was Taylor's mistake thinkin' she was the daughter of his old partner—nobody else knows about it out here —and I understand if there is any trouble you an' Reed go behind the bars—an' it don't make no difference where the report comes from—take it or leave it, Snipe, it's up to you."

Snipe Roach decided to leave it. Bill Sheridan replying to Helen's letter wished her all the blessings in the world and justified her opinion of his character by enclosing a check for his third of the twenty-five thousand deposit.

"When I come East," he wrote, "I'll call and see you and thank this man Taylor for takin' such good care of you—he sure must be a real man or you wouldn't have nothin' to do with him——"

Taylor laughed when he read the letter. He felt that Helen was one of one influential friends when the happy day arrived for him to take up his residence in the City of Magic.

STOCKS WEAKER IN A DULL MARKET

New York Air Brake Slumps in Price; U. S. Steel a Little Lower

By W. H. ROSS
Financial Editor.

Stocks were generally lower in New York on the opening today. Few of them were above those of the closing yesterday. The market was quiet throughout the session. A number of traders was largely confined to a few specialties. New York Air Brake sustained a large loss and Ohio Cities Gas was another exception to the weak tendency. It did not rally. Marine preferred showed more strength in the last hour. American Hide & Leather closed strong, although it had been influenced somewhat by the announcement of the War Industries Board that the Italian government had placed a ban on the importation of leather and shoes from any foreign country.

DECLINES AND GAINS.

Among the declines were U. S. Steel ¼ at 98½; New York Air Brake 4¾ at 92¾; Ohio Cities Gas 2¾; Texas & Pacific 1¾ at 31½; Mexican Petroleum ¼ at 166½; Texas Company ¼ at 149¾; Southern Pacific ½ at 97½; Union Pacific ¼ at 124⅝, and Bethlehem B ¾ at 58¾.

Gains included American Hide & Leather preferred ⅞ at 87½; Amanda ⅜ at 59⅜; Baldwin ¼ at 86¾; Heads ⅜ at 78⅝; Tobacco Products ½ at 77½ and Marine preferred ⅜ at 97¾.

In Boston, where the market had been fairly firm, gains included Utah-Apex Fruit 1 at 161, Swift & Co. ¾ at 118⅝, New Haven ¾ at 32, Lake Superior ⅝ at 23½, Arizona Commercial ⅜ at 11⅝ and United Shoe ¼ at 44⅞, Atlantic & Co. was off ¼ at 36⅞ and Boston Elevated ¼ at 89.

MARKET DULL AT OPENING.

Trading was dull and the changes and prices were irregular for a few minutes. Business was confined to room traders, as they being bearish with few exceptions the offerings were mostly at concessions. This depressed the list at once and, following U. S. Steel, prices were off generally. By the end of the first hour the market was rather weak, although most concessions were small. Ohio Cities Gas and Texas & Pacific sustained substantial losses, the latter two points or more. U. S. Steel opened with a trifling gain and its next price change was also small. It was quiet and so were railroads. There was very little fluctuation to copper and they reflected the market. Utah Gits were no exception to the recessional trend, as they made a fractional price range than other groups. Marine preferred showed a loss at first but quickly recovered.

WALL STREET TALK CHEERFUL.

Wall Street talk is cheerful on the whole, although the professional stock-trading element is not speculating actual that the New York Air Brake declined more than two points in the first hour, although it is stated that it is expected to report next month larger earnings for 1918 than it made in 1917, when earnings were equivalent to $13.94 a share. In 1916 they were $82.15. The activity of Ohio Cities Gas came while it was from the Ohio State capital that it has authorized the issue of $9,187,500 additional common stock, which will be offered to stockholders at $25 a share. The company is said to plan further investments in Texas and to enter Mexico.

MORE MONEY FOR BANKS.

One overnight statement from New York is regarded to the effect that the Federal Reserve Bank of New York will declare a dividend of $1.50 a share, the amount of the two previous distributions.

Net profits of the Cumberland Pipe Line Co. for 1918 were $564,664, or the equivalent of $37.60 a share compared with $52.76 a share for the preceding year.

This has not been a Winter productive of large gain for grain, the American Ice Company does not demand upon lakes and rivers for its product, although it owns thirteen artificial ice manufacturing plants in New Jersey, seventeen in Pennsylvania, in Maryland, fifteen in New York, three in Washington and one in Boston.

The Atlantic Fruit Company decided to Winter wheat in the United States, and on December 1 condition was 98.5. The five-year average for Winter wheat area is under 40,000,000, and the ten-year condition average 88.2.

LITTLE PIGS MAKE BIG PROFITS!

Here is a chance for you! Any boy or girl can have a pair of pigs for raising order to per management. As soon as pigs are ready you can sell them for $75 and have over $50 profit. You can keep on raising as many litters under ordinary conditions in California.

It just lacks the money for some investment. $75 will start you in business for yourself. Write today for full particulars.

N. Y. COTTON MARKET DULL AT OPENING

New York, Feb. 1.—At the opening of the cotton market today March was down 16 points, while other months were unchanged to 12 points higher. Business was only moderately active. The weather in the South was attributed to the action of foreign buying. Purchasing of the later months was scattered and there was further covering of shorts in March. Liverpool operates for Japanese interests. Immediately after the call March rallied slightly from the low point, while later months were a shade easier.

Opening prices were: March, $32.26; May, $27.63; July, $26.85; September, $19.75; October, $19.18; December, $19.05.

Chicago Grain Market

Chicago, Feb. 1.—Corn opened ½ to 1¼ cents higher. Oats were ¼ cent lower, and provisions opened unchanged. Opening prices were: Corn, February, 2.26; March, 1.72; May, 1.57. Oats, February, .55¾; May, .54¾. Lard, May, 23.05.

1,100,000,000 WHEAT CROP INDICATED

New York, Feb. 1.—Indications are that the wheat crop of the United States this season will approximate 1,100,000,000 bushels, or 22½ per cent more than average of five years between 1912 and 1916. Grain men are trying to figure what effect the great crop will have on world markets. An increase in ocean tonnage sufficient to bring wheat from southern hemisphere and no improvement in inland transportation in Europe will produce congestion, while ability to transport and distribute according to need of the world will take all estimated production.

After using up their own production of 1918, United Kingdom, Belgium, France, Italy, Holland, Sweden, Switzerland, Spain, Portugal and Greece must import $75,000,000 bushels more than to the next European crop—August 1, 1919, bread is to per cent the diet of the United States, by cutting down the use of coarse grains, France can cut its consumption 10,000,000 bushels, making imports required from other countries 475,000,000 to August 1, 1919.

Counting accumulated wheat in Australia and deducting reports of damage by weevil and nice exports, available surplus of United States, Argentina and Australia this season was almost 530,000,000 bushels. The two years' exports from this country to the
